PROPOSED IRISH ALLOTMENT ACT

A deputation, consisting of Alderman William O'Connor and Alderman A. Byrne (of the Dublin Corporation Allotments Committee), Mr. John Farrelly (Vice-President, Dublin Trades Council, and President Irish Plotholders' Union), and Mr. P. Donnelly (Organising Secretary, Irish Plotholders' Union), waited on Monday on the Department of Agriculture and Technical Instruction, Ireland, to urge on that body the absolute necessity for the continuance of the plotholding movement, and to request the introduction of an Act to make the scheme permanent in Ireland.

Mr. H. T. Barrie, M.P., the Vice-President of the Department, informed the deputation that an Allotment Bill was in the course of preparation to establish on a permanent basis the allotment movement in Ireland. In the meantime he was endeavouring to have the present legislation extended for twelve months, so that, in the event of the permanent Act not receiving the Royal Assent in this session of Parliament, there would be no crux in providing the land for allotments at the close of the current year. The Vice-President also promised to consult with the deputation when the permanent allotment Act is being drafted.

ROYAL PORTRUSH.—At the 30th annual meeting, held on Saturday, Mr. C. W. Pollock presided over a large attendance of members. On the motion of the Chairman, it was decided to forward a telegram to the King, tendering to His Majesty the club's loyal and heartfelt congratulations on the signing of the Peace Treaty. The Council's report stated that the membership consisted of 425 gentlemen and 266 ladies. The Earl of Antrim was elected an honorary member of the club. Mr. Fred. Hoey proposed the re-election of Major Heslet, D.S.O., as captain, and the motion was seconded by Mr. D. F. Scott. Mr. Daniel MacLaughlin, as a member of the Council, said that the Council was not acting in opposition to Major Heslet in unanimously recommending Mr. C. W. Pollock for the captaincy. Now that the war was over, it was, however, important to have a captain who would be on the spot to look after matters. The Council had carefully considered the matter and made the recommendation, and he, therefore, proposed Mr. C. W. Pollock, who had acted so efficiently during the last two years, for the captaincy. Mr. S. Kirkpatrick seconded. The voting was—12 for Mr. Pollock, and 38 for Major Heslet, who was elected. Mr. Pollock was re-elected Vice-Captain. The re-election of Major Heslet, Captain Long, Major Montgomery, and Captain Cramsie to the Council was unanimously agreed to. The following members of the Council were elected by ballot—Messrs. PEMBROKE S.C.

The winner and Strahan had a great race for three-quarters of the distance, when Beckett forged ahead to win by less than a yard.

50 Yards Junior Championship—Result:—F. J. Dowling, 1; N. Mather, 2; B. Leitch, 3. Also competed—H. Case (jun.), L. A. Orr, W. Jewell. Time, 41 secs. Dowling won by a yard from Mathers, who in turn beat Leitch by a like margin.

LAWN TENNIS.

ALL ENGLAND CHAMPIONSHIPS.

INTERESTING PLAY.

The most gratifying feature of yesterday's play at Wimbledon was the victory of Lieut.-Colonel A. R. F. Kingscote, M.C., R.G.A., over the young American, C. Garland. The Ladies' Singles semi-final between Mlle. Lenglen and Miss Ryan brought out some masculine-like tennis, which was both refreshing and vigorous. Details:—

Singles Championship—Semi-final—Lieut.-Col. A. R. F. Kingscote beat C. Garland—6-1, 6-4, 2-6, 5-7, 6-4; G. L. Patterson beat M. J. G. Ritchie—6-1, 7-5, 1-6, 6-3.

Ladies' Singles Championship—Semi-final—Miss Satterthwaite beat Miss Beamish—6-4, 10-8; Mlle. Lenglen beat Miss Ryan—6-4, 7-5.

PROVINCIAL PARAGRAPHS.

SAILING BETWEEN BELFAST AND ARDROSSAN.—The daylight sailings between Belfast and Ardrossan were resumed yesterday by the turbine steamer Viper.

FARMER'S SUICIDE.—At an inquest held at Kylepark, Borrisokane, yesterday, a verdict was returned to the effect that Mr. Murray Fortune, an extensive farmer, committed suicide by hanging himself while temporarily insane.

FATAL BURNING ACCIDENT.—Annie Woods, a child aged four, was fatally burned at Athlunkard, near Limerick, on Sunday. During the absence of her mother and aunt the little child's clothing became ignited. There were only some other young children in the house at the time of the occurrence.

SETTLEMENT OF FARM LABOURERS' DISPUTE.—The dispute between the County Meath Branch of the Farmers' Union and the Meath Labour Union concerning the wages to the labourers was satisfactorily settled yesterday. The following terms were agreed upon:—A weekly wage of 30/- to be paid to all labourers for a nine-hour day, with a £2 bonus to men in constant employment. This applies to the Eastern division of the county. On the western portions of Meath the terms are 28/6 per week for a nine-hour day, with £2 bonus. Similar terms have been offered to the labourers who are members of the Irish Transport and General Workers' Union.

BELFAST SCHOOL OF ART'S APPOINTMENT.—A discussion took place at yesterday's meeting of the Belfast Corporation relative to the appointment of a head master of the School of Art in the Municipal Technical Institute. Councillor Stirling emphasised the fact that this was an Art School in a technical institute. In other words, it was a school of applied art. It was for applying art training to technical and industrial purposes. Not merely the linen trade had reason to complain, but he had heard that the Queen's Island Shipyard had tried and failed to get young men for their drawing office from the technical school. If they had an Art School that could not turn out material for the Queen's Island and the linen trade it was no good. The minutes were passed.

PROPOSED IRISH ALLOTMENT ACT.

A deputation, consisting of Alderman William O'Connor and Alderman A. Byrne (of the Dublin Corporation Allotments Committee), Mr. John Farrelly (Vice-President, Dublin Trades Council, and President Irish Plotholders' Union) and Mr. P. Donnelly (Organising Secretary, Irish Plotholders' Union), waited on Monday on the Department of Agriculture and Technical Instruction, Ireland, to urge on that body the absolute necessity for the continuance of the plotholding movement, and to request the introduction of an Act to make the scheme permanent in Ireland.

Mr. H. T. Barrie, M.P., the Vice-President of the Department, informed the deputation that an Allotment Bill was in the course of preparation to establish on a permanent basis the allotment movement in Ireland. In the meantime he was endeavouring to have the present legislation extended for twelve months, so that, in the event of the permanent Act not receiving the Royal Assent in this session of Parliament, there would be no crux in providing the land for allotments at the close of the current year. The Vice-President also promised to consult with the deputation when the permanent allotment Act is being drafted.

CLAREMORRIS MEETING—YESTERDAY.

The attendance yesterday at Claremorris beat all records for the meeting, and the racing, which was carried through under perfect conditions, was up to a fair standard of excellence. The feature of the proceedings was the success of the Bishopstown stable, which captured three of the half-dozen events on the card. The half-brothers My Rath and My Royal won the Committee Plate and Commercial Plate respectively, and the other winner from the stable was Aright Diavolo, who won the Claremorris Plate, and all three were ridden by E. Houlihan. Derg Abu made every post a winning one in the Stewards' Plate, and won in a manner suggestive of his gaining further laurels in the near future. The useful steeplechase horse, Signum, showed unexpected pace in the Ladies' Plate, and going to the front at the start he led all the way, winning easily; while another easy victory was that achieved by Templedowney, who, though opposed by some moderate horses in the Traders' Plate, accomplished his work in more generous style than he has shown of late. CHANTICLEER'S NOTES.

(SPECIAL TELEGRAM.)

NEWMARKET, TUESDAY NIGHT.

The poor acceptance obtained for the Duke of Cambridge Handicap leaves us with the certainty of a field which will not exceed six in number, as Baal Gad did not accompany Quadrille from Manton. Control, a very fine-looking three-year-old, ran the other day as though not quite ready; otherwise the weight is a winning one. Zinovia appears to be held safely by Grand Fleet, who has run with great credit on more than one occasion this season, and looks like accounting for the uncertain Jutland. Quadrille, however, may win. My other selections are:—Plantation Plate—Fair Simone or Plymouth Rock. Maiden Plate—Eastern Valley. Stud Produce Stakes—Golden Guinea. Soham Plate—Verdun or C.P. Stetchworth Plate—Pesaro.

My fancies for Carlisle are:—Bective Selling—Bedrest. City Selling—Glass Ball. Corby Castle Plate—Theolin. Devonshire Plate—Simon Grab. Blackhall Handicap—Friar Denis. Muncaster Plate—Jacksdale.

INTER-ALLIED SPORTS.

The following are the results of yesterday's events in the Inter-Allied sports at the Pershing Stadium in Paris:—

200 Metres Sprint.—First heat—Legendre (America), 1; Andre (France), 2; Norman (America), 3. Time—22 2-5 secs. Second heat—Blades (Canada), 1; Salvi (Italy), 2; Vidal (America), 3. Time—22 3-5 secs.

Running Broad Jump.—Legendre (America), 1, with 6.575 metres; Vidal (America), 2, with 6.41 metres; Falvi (Italy), 3, with 6.5095 metres.

In the pole vault trials the following qualified for the finals, with the bar at 10ft. 4ins.:—Floyd (America), Ervin (America), Harwood (America), Scamegnemelle (France), Gajan (France), and Girard (France).

In the feather-weight boxing Fundy (America) beat Hallam (Australia) in ten rounds on points; Depouthieu (France) beat Schuller (Belgium) in the seventh round; Spalla (Italy) beat Fineen (Rumania) by default.

AMERICAN ARMY v. IRELAND.

At a meeting of the I.A.A.A. Race Committee, held at their office on Monday evening, an international contest between the track team of the American Army (France) and an Irish team was arranged. The meeting is fixed for Saturday, July 12th, at Lansdowne road. The programme will embrace fifteen events, including a relay race. The American team will include several of the best athletes in the world, including Simpson, who holds the 120 yards hurdle record, and who won on Saturday in Paris the 110 metres hurdle in 15 1-5 secs., while on the same occasion Butler cleared 24ft. 9ins. in the long jump, which is getting very close to our own Peter O'Connor's world's record of 24ft. 11¾ins., and also P. Ryan, who won the Irish weight-throwing on Whit Monday.

The Irish Times.

WEDNESDAY, JULY 2, 1919.

The Supreme Council of the Peace Conference will henceforth be a Council of Five.

It was announced in both Houses of Parliament yesterday that Thanksgiving Services for Peace would be held in all the churches on Sunday next, and that Saturday, 19th July, would be observed as a day of general rejoicing.

When the Irish Housing Bill was considered by a Standing Committee of the House of Commons yesterday the Irish members took exception to its financial provisions. The Chief Secretary said that the payment by the State of £1 for every £1 collected in rent was most generous financial treatment.

Mr. Seddon, the Labour leader, who was formerly a Home Ruler, speaking at a meeting in London last night, described Sinn Fein and Bolshevism as a menace to civilisation. He was convinced that the Dublin Labour movement was revolutionary.

Mr. M'Curdy stated in the House of Commons yesterday that the cost of living, so far as the average cost of essential foodstuffs was concerned, had materially decreased since the date of the armistice. Rises in the prices of some foodstuffs were due to speculators in those particular articles.

Field-Marshal Sir Douglas Haig gave evidence yesterday before the Select Committee on Pensions, and criticised the methods of the State in providing for disabled men, strongly advocating more generous provision for the wives and children of officers, saying that many officers' families were living in abject poverty.

The trial of the two brothers, John and William O'Brien, on a charge of having murdered George Sheehan at Silvermines, County Tipperary, was continued yesterday in Dublin before the Lord Chief Justice of Ireland, and has not concluded.

The Right Rev. Robert Miller was enthroned at St. Patrick's Cathedral, Cashel, yesterday, as Bishop of Cashel, Emly, Waterford, and Lismore, in succession to the Right Rev. Dr. O'Hara.

Thanksgiving for Peace.

The King has appointed next Sunday to be a day of thanksgiving throughout the realm. A Royal Proclamation, which will be read this morning at the usual places, declares that a definite Treaty of Peace has been signed between His Majesty and the German Empire, and that this Treaty will be "inviolably observed" upon the due exchange of ratifications. The subjects of the British Commonwealth have much cause for gratitude. Four years of unprecedented carnage, which have swept empires from the face of the earth, have left these islands safe. The destruction of the British Empire became chief among the war aims of the Central Powers. Every other object was subordinated to that of bringing the Island Empire to her knees. Germany's fondest hope was our annihilation. To-day the blasphemy of Gott mit uns has met its awful punishment. Germany's big battalions have been scattered to the winds, and Britain's flag floats proudly over every sea. When we think of the fate which a German victory would have brought to our islands we cannot but realise our debt of gratitude to the Providence which saved our race. Again, the menace of German militarism, which, since the days of Frederick the Great, was the bugbear of Europe, has been banished for ever. The necessity for increasing armaments has gone, and the complete collapse of the German Army will encourage the peoples to turn their backs upon the sordid story of the past fifty years. Finally, we must be thankful that the war is over. Never in the world's history have such sacrifices been demanded on the altar of destruction. Few homes in Europe have escaped the scourge, and the toll of human lives with which victory was purchased and tyranny dethroned has been paid in the blood of the world's most worthy sons. An end has come to all the unspeakable agony of death and desolation. Those of us who have survived the great cataclysm will pay due honour to the millions of fearless dead whose bodies stemmed the tide of fierce aggression. It is well that we should remember them and be thankful.

Although peace has now been proclaimed, the Treaty will not come technically into force for some time. It must first be ratified by the various contracting Governments. Peace has not yet been signed with Austria, Turkey, or Bulgaria, and some of the most complicated knots in European diplomacy still remain to be untied. Peace with Austria involves the vexed questions of Italy's claims. A new Italian delegation, under the leadership of Signor Tittoni, has come to Paris, and there is no indication that this new arrival is likely to be less insistent upon his rights than was his predecessor in office. The Treaty with Germany was mainly negative in character. "Germany renounces" prefaced almost every clause; but with Austria there is more to be done. The ramshackle Empire must be re-built according to the fashionable ideas of "self-determination." Then there is Turkey. The Turkish delegates leave Paris to-day; their visit has been barren of positive result. Damad Ferid Pasha and his colleagues were summoned to the Conference to help the Allies with their advice. They demanded the status quo for their profligate Empire, and showed a wilful ignorance of their position which proved the futility of any further parley, and resulted in M. Clemenceau's polite request that they should return at once to the place whence they came. All the problems of the Ottoman Empire remain to be solved. Great Britain has a special interest in their solution, and the settlements which are reached may influence the whole future of British Imperial policy. Feeling throughout the Near East is running very high. Turks, Greeks, Armenians, Kurds, Arabians, and Syrians will keep the Peace Conference fully occupied during the remaining days of its existence. So much depends upon the successful liquidation of the Turkish Empire, especially from our British point of view, that the decisions of the coming weeks will be hardly less important than those which determined the fate of its German master. With Bulgaria, last and least of our adversaries, the reckoning will be simple; it will be summary and severe. When all the outstanding problems of peace are taken into account, it will be recognised that the great consummation is only just in sight. The blessing which has been conferred upon humanity by the definite cessation of hostilities calls for our humble and hearty thanks; but the peace of the world has not yet been restored.

The Transport Bill.

So long as the nationalisation of all industry was only a theory, the country refused to be perturbed by it. Now we are confronted with the imminent prospect of nationalisation on a large scale, and the indifference of the threatened interests is quickening into alarm and anger. The claims of the coal-miners will be emulated by other powerful bodies of workers. The Government's attitude remains uncertain, but it must declare itself soon. The first political crisis of the post-war period probably will arise out of the conflict between the advocates and the opponents of State control. If the Government "plumps" for full nationalisation of the mines and railways, it will lose a big number—perhaps, the bulk—of the Unionists, and even of the Liberals, who now support it in the House of Commons. Already it has received a shrewd warning of the state of their temper and the extent of their influence. They have compelled it to accept drastic modifications of its enormous measure for the co-ordination of all the means of communication and transport in the United Kingdom. The Bill gave virtual control of all railways, tramways, canals, roads, docks, and harbours to a single Minister. Its critics saw in it a bold paving of the way towards complete nationalisation, and now they have compelled the Government to respect their fears. In the Committee stage they won a respite for electricity and secured the promise of an Advisory Committee which will assist the Minister in the control of rates. The Report stage was taken yesterday, when the Government was obliged to ratify further concessions—the outcome of a conference on the previous day. Mr. Bonar Law told the conference that the Government was not committed to the principle of nationalisation, whether of coal or of railways. The amendments which the Government accepted yesterday are concerned chiefly with docks and harbours and with roads. The Bill proposed to make Sir Eric Geddes absolute master and rate-controller of all docks and harbours. It is now settled that he may make orders for their development or improvement, but that the dock authorities shall have a right of appeal to an arbitrator against such orders. Instead of being, as the Bill proposed, an autocrat of all the roads in the country, Sir Eric Geddes now must be content to seek counsel from an Advisory Committee of ten persons, representing the road authorities and the general public. Some of the Labour members denounced these concessions as a "base betrayal" of the Government's promises; but the very violence of such language is likely to convince the country of the wisdom of the new safeguards. At any rate, a crisis has been averted, and the Bill, as amended, will become law. There can be no question that it is, on the whole, a necessary Bill. The improvement and co-ordination of national transport must be a condition precedent of national reconstruction. Reform must be in the hands of a single authority which will not be hampered unduly by the petty interference of local interests.

The Transport Bill, with its new limitations, will be applied to Ireland. It can be made a real boon to this country, where a national system of ways and communications hardly can be said to exist at all. In Great Britain the Bill proposes reconstruction. In Ireland its function must be construction—a building up from the very foundations. The main railways—now, financially, in an impossible position—must be reorganised. Branch railways must be built. Harbours, roads, and canals must be improved. Motor traction must be encouraged on a large scale. Until these things are done we shall have no true renaissance of Irish industry, no development of mines or water-power; and no really full opportunities will be given to the intelligence of our farmers and the fertility of our soil. One of the Bill's best features is its recognition of the difference between the transport problems in Great Britain and in Ireland. Indeed, as was shown by the discussion in Standing Committee yesterday on the Irish Housing Bill, similar differences exist throughout the whole programme of reconstruction. The Irish parts of the Transport Bill will not be administered from London. A separate branch of the Ministry, with an Irish director, will be established in Dublin. This director, we assume, will have large powers of initiative, and the terms of the Bill indicate that he will be independent of any department of the Irish Government. If a good man is appointed to the post, with ample resources, special knowledge of Irish conditions, and the gift of winning popular confidence and co-operation, the passing of the Act may inaugurate a new epoch in our economic history. Reconstruction—hitherto only a promise—will have become a reality. If, at the same time, an honest and generous start is made with the Irish housing and health measures, the working of this beneficent "triple alliance" may transform the whole aspect of national affairs.

Industrial Alcohol.

A valuable report on the production and utilisation of alcohol for power and traction purposes has just been presented to the Government by an Inter-Departmental Committee. The question is one in which every motorist takes a keen interest, for until a satisfactory substitute is found for petrol and benzol the prices of these fuels will tend to increase rather than diminish. Alcohol, of course, is an ideal motor fuel—that fact was established beyond dispute so long ago as 1908—but at present it can only be obtained in small quantities, and its price is prohibitive. The Committee believes that the time has arrived when a scheme must be devised to make alcohol available in unlimited quantities and at a low price. It is possible to "denature" the spirit so as to make it undrinkable, but a much cheaper process than that employed at present must be sanctioned. The great advantage of "power" alcohol over petrol is that, whereas the latter is derived from mineral deposits which are used up in proportion as they are extracted, "power" alcohol is obtained from vegetable substances that are renewed annually by the bounty of nature. Before the war Germany had a large alcohol industry based on potatoes. The Committee does not think that in the United Kingdom potatoes can be grown cheaply enough or on a sufficient scale to supply "power" alcohol in the future; but it points out that within the Empire there are "vast existing and prospective sources of alcohol in the vegetable world." It states that the matter is of such vital importance that the development of the industry must not be left to the chances of private enterprise, individual research, and the ordinary play of economic forces. The Government is recommended to establish a special organisation to conduct further research in co-operation with the various Governments of the Empire.

HONORARY DEGREES AT DUBLIN UNIVERSITY.

The Senate of Dublin University will assemble on Friday next, at 1 o'clock, for the purpose of conferring the honorary degree of LL.D upon Viscount French, Lord Lieutenant of Ireland. A number of honorary degrees will also be conferred upon other military leaders in recognition of their work during the war, and of their former connection with the College as students. It is understood that, in addition to the Lord Lieutenant, the recipients will be—General Sir Henry Wilson, Chief of the Imperial Staff, Brigadier-General Jellicoe, Sir Lynden Macassey, Sir James Irwin, General Swan, General Thompson, General Gerrard, and General Russell.

RESIGNATION OF JUDGE RENTOUL.

The Lord Chancellor of England has accepted the resignation of Judge Rentoul, of the City of London Court.

ROYAL IRISH CONSTABULARY APPOINTMENT.

The City Commissioner of the Belfast Police Force, Mr. T. J. Smith, J.P., has been appointed Deputy Inspector-General of the Royal Irish Constabulary, in succession to Mr. Davies. Mr. Smith has been City Commissioner in Belfast since May, 1911. Previous to his appointment as County Inspector he was Chief of the Detective Department, and had occasionally acted as Acting Commissioner in the city. Upon appointment as County Inspector he proceeded to take charge of the County of Galway. He came to Belfast from County Waterford in 1899.

THE MINISTRY OF HEALTH.

SIR WALTER KINNEAR'S APPOINTMENT.

All the powers and duties of the Local Government Board and the National Health Insurance Commissions for England and Wales having been transferred to the new Ministry of Health, Dr. Addison has appointed Sir Walter S. Kinnear, K.B.E., to be Comptroller of National Health Insurance in the new Ministry.

Sir Walter Kinnear will now vacate his appointment as Deputy-Chairman of the National Health Insurance Commission (Ireland), and the Irish Commissioners will be reduced to three in number, but otherwise, so far as the administration of the Insurance Act in Ireland is concerned, the powers and duties of the Irish Insurance Commissioners will remain unaltered.

LONDONDERRY PORT BILL.

Lord Stanmore, sitting as Chairman of the Unopposed Bills Committee, had before him yesterday the Londonderry Port and Harbour Bill, the object of which was to authorise the Commons to acquire by agreement certain "mud lands," in order to erect buildings, or apply the land to any other useful purpose connected with the undertaking. The bill was ordered to proceed for third reading in the Lords, subject to the consent of the Local Government Board, to the form of one of the clauses.

THE CELTIC CONGRESS.

We have received a copy of the transactions of the Celtic Congress, 1918, held at Neath in August last, and which was, despite the handicap of war conditions, not only thoroughly representative in character, but marked by addresses and papers of an exceptionally interesting character. Among the latter were three papers on "The Celtic Races: Their Ideals and Functions at Home and Abroad," contributed respectively by Miss Agnes O'Farrelly, M.A. (Ireland), the Hon. R. Erskine, of Marr (Scotland), and Mr. E. T. John, M.P. (Wales). There are also some interesting notes on the situation of the Breton language in Brittany by Francois Vallee. The entire publication is well calculated to stimulate interest in Ireland in the Congress to be held in Edinburgh in October, which is to be succeeded by a similar gathering in Dublin in 1920.

THE FINGALA FETE.

The manner in which the Fingala Fête is being supported is a matter on which the promoters are to be warmly congratulated. Yesterday evening the grounds attached to the Holy Faith Convent at Glasnevin, where the fête is being held, were looking their best with the fine weather prevailing, and the patronage extended was even better than on the three previous days. There is no end to the number and variety of the amusements provided for visitors, who seemed to enter into everything with great heartiness and spirit. Among the attractions which are evidently very keenly appreciated may be mentioned the helter-skelter, shooting games, tobogganing, and the Fingala Opera House. The latter is under the able directorship of Mr. Walter McNally, and the musical programmes submitted are rare treats in themselves. Bands supply delightful music, and the ballroom is a scene of continuous gaiety.

LONDON CORRESPONDENCE.

59 FLEET STREET, LONDON, TUESDAY NIGHT.

The chief interest of question time in the House of Commons to-day was Mr. Bonar Law's statement regarding the official peace celebrations. These will be held earlier than was expected. Thanksgiving Services in places of worship—including one at St. Paul's Cathedral, in which members of Parliament are invited to take part—will be held on Sunday next, while the general public rejoicings will take place on Saturday, July 19th, a fortnight earlier than the date previously foreshadowed.

The mystery regarding the future State of Montenegro was to some extent cleared up to-day. Mr. Harmsworth, in reply to a question by Mr. R. McNeill, said that, since the departure of King Nicholas, there had been a growing desire on a part of a large portion of the population for union with the new Jugo-Slav State, and the Government had despatched a mission to Cettinje to ascertain the present condition of affairs. The tone of his reply left little doubt that the Government sympathised with this desire, though he was careful to say that the recognition of the Jugo-Slav State in no way prejudiced the Montenegrins' right of "self-determination."

Mr. Churchill stated that Sir Horace Smith-Dorrien has asked for permission to reply to the attack made upon him by Lord French, but had been refused it by the Army Council, on the ground that he was still a serving soldier. There was the usual crop of complaints regarding delays in demobilisation, and Mr. Churchill, while declining to make exceptions to the present rules, stated that he would shortly issue a memorandum dealing with the changes in Army policy consequent upon the declaration of peace, which, he led the House to infer, would enable more men to be released.

Mr. Donald got little sympathy from the rest of the House when he asked the Government to prohibit the sale of intoxicants during the peace celebrations, and Mr. Bonar Law was loudly cheered when he described the proposal as undesirable. On the other hand, Mr. Bottomley was neatly scored off by the Chancellor of the Exchequer when he declared that people were refusing to subscribe to the Joy Loan as a protest against the shortage of beer and the increase in railway fares, and undertook, if these grievances were remedied, to guarantee a subscription of 100 million Victory Bonds. "Oh, but I expect the hon. member to do that anyhow," retorted Mr. Chamberlain, amid approving cheers.

Within twenty-four hours of his return from Paris, the Prime Minister was compelled to resume the rôle of conciliator. The representatives of the docks, harbours, and roads, who had leagued themselves together against certain provisions of the Transport Bill, might not have been able to defeat the measure, but they could have seriously delayed its passage, and weakened the Government in consequence. But, as the result of last night's conference with the Premier and Sir Eric Geddes, Mr. Joynson-Hicks announced to-day that certain amendments had been agreed to which would satisfy him and his friends. The dock and harbour owners are to have a special right of appeal against the fiats of the Transport Minister, while the latter, in his dealings with the roads, is to have the assistance of an Advisory Committee representing the interests specially concerned.

An amusing incident enlivened the prosaic proceedings on the Transport Bill in the Commons, as Sir W. Raeburn was speaking. Mr. Sexton came furtively from behind the Speaker's chair, and he had only been a few seconds in his place when Sir Richard Cooper called Mr. Lowther's attention to the fact that the hon. member was smoking. The House was horrified, and looked to see Mr. Sexton puffing volumes of smoke from, perhaps, a well-worn briar, or even a docker's clay. Nothing of the sort; but there was an aroma in the neighbourhood, and the conclusion was arrived at that an unextinguished cigar or cigarette was being skilfully camouflaged. But this was not all the incident. Sir Richard Cooper, when he rose to the point of order as to whether it was competent for a member to smoke, was unable to find his headgear, and he substituted therefor his order paper. One of the Labour members, seeing his difficulty, saw a way out, and unhesitatingly seized upon Mr. Sexton's own hat, which he passed to the hon. baronet. The House roared with laughter, and the Speaker did nothing to allay the amusement when, on the point of order, he declared that it was quite competent for a hon. member to smoke in the House, but that it was contrary to the rules.

The Prime Minister is to give an interesting dinner party on Friday evening, when all the seventy-one members of his Government are to dine with him.

The Prince of Wales, who is to be called to the Bar in the Middle Temple to-morrow evening, will immediately afterwards become a Bencher of the Inn. The one ceremony is always followed by the other in the case of a member of the Royal Family, a practice adopted when King Edward was called to the Bar at the Middle Temple some sixty years ago. King Edward was the only Sovereign who has ever dined in the hall at the Middle Temple as a Bencher, and not as a guest. When the Prince of Wales is a Bencher each of the four Inns of Court will have a Royal Bencher. The King is at Lincoln's Inn, the Duke of Connaught at Gray's Inn, and Prince Arthur at the Inner Temple.

It is presumed generally that the signing of peace will permit a resumption of friendly and business relations with the German people, but the Sailors' and Firemen's Union will not agree to such a course. This Union, it may be remembered, announced formally that it would have nothing to do with Germany for a certain period after the war in consequence of Germany's submarine brutalities. It is said that the members of the Union are determined that this idea shall be carried out, though the authorities hope to make them listen to reason. It will be interesting to hear what Mr. Havelock Wilson may have to say on this subject.

Attention is called to-day to one remarkable feature of the war. It is that many millions of people have crossed the English Channel on the South-Eastern cross-Channel system, the traffic averaging one boat an hour since the war began, and not a life or a boat has been lost. This is a wonderful record, when the fogs, the submarines, and the mines, to say nothing of the many heavy gales, are recalled.

Sir Watson Rutherford took the chair at the meeting to-day of members interested to learn the aims of the United Kingdom Business Men's Federation. The Federation has arisen out of the One-Man Businesses Association. Broadly speaking, it sets out for the organisation and defence of the small trader, whose very existence is menaced by the multiple shop, the co-operative system, and the heavy pressure of taxation. Of multiple shops, Sir Watson stated, there are in the country no less than 30,000 belonging to the great combines, whose vast amounts of capital enable them to carry on a merciless competition against the small trader. For the protection of the one-man business during the war the Board of Trade was persuaded to pass an ordinance against a too near trespass of competition against such businesses, and it is hoped that the continuation of this provision, with suitable modifications or extensions, may be secured for the future.

ACCIDENT TO LORD ASHTOWN.

While driving at Craughwell on Friday Lord Ashtown was thrown from his car, owing to the horse shying. His lordship sustained slight injuries. It is stated that passers-by refused to give any assistance when called on to do so by armed police who were escorting his lordship.

NEW BISHOP OF CASHEL.

ENTHRONEMENT OF THE RIGHT REV. ROBERT MILLER.

REFERENCE TO STATE OF IRELAND.

(FROM OUR REPORTER.)

CASHEL, TUESDAY.

The enthronement of the Right Rev. Robert Miller, in succession to the Right Rev. Dr. O'Hara, as Bishop of Cashel, Emly, Waterford, and Lismore, took place to-day in the Cathedral Church of St. Patrick, Cashel, in the presence of a large congregation, representative of the parishes in the diocese. The Service opened with the processional hymn, "All people that on earth do dwell," during the singing of which a procession of twenty clergy, including all the members of the Chapter and choir, entered their places in the choir stalls. After prayer by the Dean of Cashel, the Diocesan Registrar read and presented to the Dean the Archbishop's mandate for the enthronement of the Bishop. When he had made his declaration, the Dean conducted him, his chaplain following, to the steps of the throne, and placed him thereon and enthroned him, after which he added the blessing. The Bishop then began the service of Holy Communion. The Gospel was read by the Dean, and the Epistle by Archdeacon White Bell. Before the recessional hymn, "O God, our help in ages past," the National Anthem was sung.

Rev. Canon Stoney, D.D., Treasurer, Christ Church Cathedral, Dublin, delivered an address, in which he referred to the town of Cashel being so well known for the great Synod of Cashel in 1172, and spoke of the monuments on the Rock and their significance. Having dealt with the solemnity of the ceremony in which they were engaged, and of the long acquaintance with the Bishop and his high appreciation of his character and worth, and the special work he had done for education, the preacher, in the name of those present, wished the Bishop every blessing and happiness. He prayed God that the Bishop would be long spared to preside over the united dioceses, and help forward the Church in its fight against sin and wickedness.

The special music was under the supervision of Canon Nicholson, and Miss Abercrombie presided at the organ.

MEETING OF SYNOD.

The Synod of Cashel and Emly met in the Synod Hall, Cashel, in the afternoon, the Bishop presiding.

Precentor D. Boinville moved:—

We, the members of the Synod of Cashel and Emly, desire most heartily and respectfully to welcome the Right Rev. Robert Miller as President of this Synod, and as the Father in God of the faithful in the United Diocese we represent. We assure him of our loyal support in all his endeavours for the good of the Church in our midst, and pray that God may bless him abundantly in his episcopate with such Divine support as will ensure success in his high office, endowing him at the same time with health and happiness, and an honour that shall increase with increasing years, which, we pray God, may be many.

Captain Carden seconded the motion, which was supported by Mr. R. L. Pennefather, and passed.

THE PRESIDENT'S ADDRESS.

The President, replying to the welcome, said that Irishman were peculiarly susceptible to sympathy, and it would be his great privilege to devote himself to the highest interests of the diocese to which they were all so deeply attached.

In an address to the Synod, the President referred to the salaries of the clergy, and said that in the diocese, as elsewhere, a committee of laymen had been formed to assist in raising the incomes of the clergy. They returned their grateful thanks to those devoted Churchmen. Actions of that kind were an indication of the value the laity attached to the work of the clergymen. It was, therefore, not only a great assistance to their financial position, but most helpful in its appreciation of the clergyman's work. Alluding to the question of the amalgamation of the parishes, he said differences of opinion must arise, but if the chief object of parochial work was kept before them he felt convinced all the difficulties would be overcome.

LAWLESSNESS AND CRIME.

Proceeding, his lordship said—We meet at an important time in the life of our nation and of our country. The war has come to an end, and we are now confronted with many acute difficulties. Every Christian many must deeply deplore the many evidences of lawlessness existing in this country to-day. Ireland has always been known as a religious country, deeply devoted to the Christian faith, and it is, therefore, saddening in the extreme to hear of acts being committed which tend infallibly to show that the old-time love of faith is departing. We earnestly trust that there will be a reawakening. Never in the history of the world did any good result from cold-blooded murder, and it is only a question of time until the doers of such deeds and the policy supported by such methods, fall under a curse. Irishmen of all classes and creeds will join in praying that God will save Ireland from these cruel enemies of her best and highest interests.

THE EDUCATION QUESTION.

Education occupied a prominent place among the subjects engaging the attention of the public. All Ireland was united upon the question that the position of National and Intermediate school teachers ought to be considerably improved. They had excellent grounds for believing that the Government intended to place a bill before the country at an early date to meet the present needs. It looked as if Ireland was likely to be placed under an education rate, and they trusted that the Government would have careful regard to the rights and wishes of the various religious denominations. Proceeding, his lordship said that we lived at a time and in the midst of circumstances which must induce all thoughtful men to think earnestly of higher and more enduring things than matters of mere interest to themselves alone. They had much unrest at home, and he asked upon what basis authority rested at present? Many of the old foundations, which they thought had been well and truly laid, had been uprooted, and they had now to reconsider their position. A foundation which they could be sure of, and it was well to hold on to and build on, was the power of a holy life and the moral weight of a fine example. The report of the Diocesan Council showed that the surplus income of the Diocesan Stipend Fund for the year, after making all ordinary payments and war bonuses to clergy, amounted to £243. The balance carried forward showed a decrease of £115, subscriptions to assessment amounted to £1,913, showing an increase of £296.

The report was adopted.

The following were elected on the Diocesan Council:—

Clerical—Archdeacon Wilson, Canons Pike, G. P. White, de Boinville, Empson, and Lynch, Rev. James White; supplemental—Revs. A. Pike, St. John Seymour, R. C. Patten, G. McKinley. Lay—Andrew Carden, Sir Chas. Barrington, G. C. Townsend, Major Phillips, C. M. Going, Major Cooper, C. V. Barrington, A. H. Morgan, Major O'Grady, C. H. Clarke, F. S. Low, R. L. Pennefather, Colonel Cooke, H. O. Langley; supplemental—F. Gubbins, T. B. Ponsonby, Capt. Trent, R. S. Pennefather.

THE MARCONI CLAIM.

ARBITRATION PROCEEDINGS.

When the Marconi Wireless Company's claim for £7,000,000 damages against the Crown for breach of contract for the construction of an Imperial chain of wireless stations was resumed before Mr. Justice Lawrence yesterday, the Solicitor-General (Sir Ernest Pollock) continued his cross-examination of Mr. Godfrey Isaacs, managing director of the company. He questioned witness about an alternative proposal that the company should have a capital payment for erecting the stations, instead of royalties on the gross receipts. The company was to receive £1,300,000, and he suggested that the cost of the work would have been £750,000, leaving the company £550,000.

Mr. Isaacs said that he could not agree.

The Solicitor-General—As the matter stands under the contract, it is clear that the Postmaster-General might have dispensed with the services of the Marconi Company?

Mr. Isaacs—I do not think so. He could if he had found something to supersede everything that the Marconi Company was able to offer.

Mr. Isaacs characterised as nonsense a suggestion that, when the proper deductions were made, the amount due to the company would be less than £50,000.

The Solicitor-General—Just as much nonsense as your claim for £7,000,000.

Sir Edward Carson—You will soon be in their debt, Mr. Isaacs.

Mr. Isaacs—I wonder we are not already. (Laughter.)

Re-examined by Sir Edward Carson, witness said that the company's remuneration was to be in royalties.

Did anybody contemplate that for a twenty-eight years' contract you were only to get £50,000? No, certainly not.

Has any efficient commercial station been erected in these islands except under the Marconi patents? Neither in these islands nor anywhere else, to my knowledge.

You would not deny that an out-of-date system might be adopted? Up-to-date?

No, out-of-date, like they did the telephones? (Laughter.) Oh, yes.

They could use out-of-date stations with patents that had run out? Yes, but they would not be anything like capable of doing a commercial service.

MEMORIAL TRIBUTE TO THE ULSTER DIVISION.

At the City Hall, Belfast, yesterday, the Lady Mayoress (Mrs. J. C. White), placed wreaths outside the City Hall in memory of the men of the Ulster Division who fell on 1st July, 1916. References were also made to the gallant stand of the Ulster Division at the battle of the Somme by the Lord Mayor and other members of the Belfast Corporation.

SELECT COMMITTEE ON PENSIONS.

SIR DOUGLAS HAIG'S EVIDENCE.

DELAYS, HARDSHIP, AND DISTRESS.

OFFICERS' FAMILIES IN ABJECT POVERTY.

Field-Marshal Sir Douglas Haig, giving evidence before the Select Committee on Pensions in the House of Commons yesterday, said:—In the late summer of 1918 I was appalled by the evidence received as to the methods of the State to provide for the disabled. Not only were cases which were dealt with brought to my notice, but daily I received letters from all parts of the United Kingdom with the same piteous appeal. Since then matters have in some degree improved, but not so far as the officers are concerned. I hold strongly it is the duty of the State to provide for those who have suffered in the great war, but I am prepared to admit that there may be small gaps which must be filled by voluntary effort. The strain thrown on charitable institutions and the high pressure at which they are forced to work are sufficient condemnation of the Government methods and proof of the inadequacy of the State pensions. On discharge officers are in many cases left penniless. The War Office should not discharge a man until the Ministry of Pensions can take him over. In some cases members of the Medical Board are ignorant of the actual disease suffered. In others they are lacking in all sympathy and generosity. There is no uniformity in their decisions, and some treat every wretched individual who appears before them as a malingerer. I strongly advise the appointment of a selected combatant officer to act as assessor. The action of the War Office in putting officers on insufficient half-pay can only be described as inhuman.

GOVERNMENT DELAYS.

The delays in Government departments produce much hardship and distress, including the delay in the assessment of disability retired pay owing to the non-receipt of papers from the Air Ministry and War Office, the delay in obtaining temporary grants from the Civil Liabilities Commission, owing to strict adherence to the inelastic conditions, and delay in the completion of training arrangements by the Ministry of Labour. I strongly advocate more generous provision for the wives and children of officers, also for the education of the children. On their present allowance families live in abject poverty, and the widows are unable to give proper education to their children. The total disability rates for both officers and men are inadequate. Cases have been brought to my notice in which officers drawing the maximum rate are in a state of abject poverty. In the case of other ranks the flat rate of 27s. 6d., with 20 per cent. bonus places a disabled man at a pecuniary disadvantage compared with his neighbours. The weekly allowance should be increased to at least 40s. I would urge a more generous and sympathetic treatment to all suffering from gas poisoning, shell shock, and neurasthenia. It is admitted that their suitable treatment is no easy matter. Employers are shy of giving them appointments. The many piteous appeals brought to my notice cry for immediate reform in the method of treatment.

"A DISGRACE TO A CIVILISED STATE."

Sir Douglas also called attention to the attitude of the trade unions. Continuing, he said: I cannot close my evidence without calling attention to the scandalous treatment of those who earned pre-war pensions. Many of them served in the present war. The wretched pittance for a life-long service is a disgrace to a civilised State. I wish to pay a tribute to the courtesy and sympathetic attitude of the present Ministry of Pensions and of the excellent work of the "Officers' Friend." The decentralisation of the Ministry's work is a step forward, and I urge that a representative of the "Officers' Friend" be attached to each centre. There is at present no official outside London who can give sympathetic advice and assistance to officers. To sum up on behalf of those who have suffered in the country's cause, and especially on behalf of their wives and children, I appeal for (1) a greater generosity on the part of the State, (2) a single authority to co-ordinate the work of Ministers; (3) an improvement in the machinery that is working enormously, laboriously, no doubt, but too slowly, and in many cases unsympathetically.

Sir Douglas stated that he had had many cases of officers absolutely starving, and gave particulars of a number of cases of hardship, etc. He thought an appeal tribunal, independent of the Pensions Board, would restore confidence.

HOSTILITY OF TRADE UNIONS.

Dealing with what he described as the hostility of trade unions to train disabled men in obtaining employment, Sir Douglas cited the case of a man who was trained in a technical school, and at the end of his training received a certificate. He obtained an offer of employment, but the Boilermakers' Union objected to his going to work. Why should the question of trade unionism prevent a man obtaining a situation when he can meet it and is qualified? indignantly asked Sir Douglas. This man had been trained in a Government school, and had his certificate. The trade union ought to have allowed the firm to employ him.

The Chairman read a letter from the Southampton Branch Boilermakers' Society to the Hampshire War Pensions Committee regarding the matter, stating it was impossible to accept as a member of a skilled craft such as theirs, requiring long apprenticeship, a man with only two months' school training.

The Chairman said that it was a reasonable trade union regulation.

Sir Douglas replied that the Government train disabled men. They turn them out with a certificate of efficiency, and, though a man gets an appointment, he is unable to take his place in the works because a trade union objects.

PEACE AND POVERTY.

Sir Douglas added that the nation was expected to celebrate peace. How, he asked, can the nation be expected to rejoice when those who have given their all in the struggle are in such a state of want as many of them are proved to be? No man should suffer because he has served his country. My desire is to get the best possible terms for every man. You surely do not want to pauperise any man who has risked his life on the field of battle? You want to be generous.

Sir John Butcher—And just.

Sir Douglas—Yes, and just.

In answer to questions, Sir Douglas said that the Medical Board should be reconstructed so that an officer should be appointed on each Board as an assessor.

The Chairman—Do you think it would be desirable to have a representative of the men on the Boards?

Sir Douglas—I think the men have full confidence in their officers. He went on to say that there was an impression abroad that instructions had been given to reduce grants. There was a general tendency to lower them.

The Chairman said that at Chelsea he believed they had been raised.

Sir Douglas agreed as to the desirability of an independent tribunal for appeal in regard to the amount of pensions.

CIVIL SERVICE ESTIMATES.

THE NEW COMMERCIAL COUNSELLORS.

The Committee on the Civil Service Estimates met yesterday, Mr. Turton presiding, with the estimates for the Department of Overseas Trade.

Major Newman asked what was the difference between a Consul and the Commercial Counsellors which it was proposed to appoint. He thought that there would be a great saving if the Consular Service and the Department of Overseas Trade were amalgamated. At the present moment British capital and undertakings were being very badly treated in the Argentine. Apparently the Argentine Government at present would like to freeze British industries out of the Argentine altogether.

Sir Arthur Steel Maitland said that the question of general treatment by a foreign country of British capital invested in it was not a localised question, and consequently would be dealt with by the Commercial Attaché. The duties of a Commercial Attaché were to collect information from various Consuls and consolidate it and draw general inferences. Fresh posts were being established in Turkey, Siberia, Cuba, and the Balkans.

The vote was agreed to.

On the estimates for the Office of Works,

Captain Stanley Wilson said that now that peace had been signed it was really necessary to take steps to stop the extravagance of the Government.

Mr. Morrison also complained of the large increase. In the year before the war the estimates were £142,000. This year they were £296,000. He said that a very large number of young ladies were employed in the Office of Works—apparently Sir A. Mond employed young ladies of such tender years that they spent part of the day in having lessons in the basement of his office. (Laughter.) He suggested that ex-soldiers should replace them.

Sir A. Mond said that the expenditure would come down, but it would be wrong for him to say it would come down to pre-war figures.

The vote was agreed to.

THE ORDER OF THE BRITISH EMPIRE.

Among those who were decorated at Buckingham Palace on the 26th ult. was Mrs. Henry Wardle, Motihari, India, who received the Order of the British Empire. Mrs. Wardle is a daughter of Mr. R. G. Bull, late Resident Magistrate, Newry, and sister of the late Brigadier-General George Bull, D.S.O.

FROM "THE TIMES" OF TO-DAY.

(BY SPECIAL ARRANGEMENT WITH THE PROPRIETORS OF THE TIMES.)

DOMINION HOME RULE.

The Times Special Correspondents who are dealing with the subject of Irish peace, discuss in the fourth article the basis of a possible settlement. The writer warns parties that the Irish question is a national, and not a party, affair, and, asserting that Mr. Asquith is plainly engaging in an attempt to make Ireland once more a party matter, declares that the Liberal Leader and his friends have no right to revive the old discredited method of using it for party ends. Great Britain, continues the Correspondent, cannot, and will not, concede the demand for a republic. The greater the emphasis with which this statement is repeated by all parties in the State, the better the chances of understanding and of settlement. It would be superfluous to investigate the reasons in detail. On the subject of Dominion Home Rule, the Correspondent writes:—There is a firm conviction among many well-informed and thinking Irishmen that the Sinn Fein Party would gladly abandon the republican demand in exchange for what is known as Dominion Home Rule. It is more than likely Dominion Home Rule has hitherto had a very precise meaning in Ireland. It differs from the republican demand in so far as it retains the common link of the Crown, but in little else. It contemplates the grant to Ireland of a place in the Constitution of the Empire similar to that of Canada, Australia, or South Africa. Under it Ireland would have power to maintain an Army and Navy. She would be in complete control of her own Customs. She need be under no obligation, unless by a previous arrangement, which could only be enforced with difficulty, to pay her fair share of the war debt. She would, save in one particular, be virtually independent. There is one tie which more strongly than any other binds our great Dominions to us in common citizenship of the Empire. It is the Crown. The catch-cry of modern Ireland sets that tie at naught. If we are to take Sinn Fein at its word, how tenuous that bond of common sovereignty would be! If Ireland ever changes her present position of a Kingdom for the status of a Dominion, it must be on other terms, and with greater assurances of permanency. There are attributes of full Dominion status which the British democracy will be slow to confer upon Ireland at the present time. There are risks which the British people cannot be expected to take. Whatever the powers conceded, it would be useless to grant to Ireland a form of government which certainly would be used immediately as a lever to exact a fuller demand. The development of political institutions in these islands cannot be stereotyped for all time by any written Constitution. If once a system of self-government be established in Ireland a process of development will have been inaugurated. This is inevitable, and it will remain for statesmen of the future, both in Great Britain and in Ireland, to guide that process to the common advantage of both countries. But it is necessary that the measure to be conferred shall have some elements of permanency. It must contain certain safeguards for its own fair trial. It is not enough to trust to probabilities. The Union is doomed. In a world peopled by economic men, raceless and without sentiment, it would have been the perfect system of government for these islands. But it has failed because the Southern Irishman rejects its advantages, and passionately prefers his own more primitive methods. It was a great triumph of statesmanship, a fine ideal, but it could not survive in the island of destiny. The vital necessities of Great Britain and the social and economic conditions of the British Islands forbid the grant of full independence to Ireland, under whatever name. Between independence, on the one hand, and the Legislative Union, on the other, a real, and not merely a nominal, compromise must be found. It must be sought in accordance with the principles which we have stated.

STATE INDUSTRIES.

The Government have succeeded, says The Times, in staving off the serious opposition which was threatened to the Transport Bill by concessions to the dock authorities and road-using interests. The conference with the Prime Minister, at which the compromise was made, was specially interesting for the light which it threw on the present state of mind of the Government. The members of the deputation came away from Downing street with the distinct impression that opinion in the Government was hardening against the nationalisation of industry in any form. In general, the attitude adopted by the Prime Minister was that the Government had a sufficiently heavy burden to bear in the next few years without piling on it, the purchase and management of huge industries.

GOOD LUCK TO R 34.

The British airship R 34, should be this morning on her way to America, says The Times. A few weeks ago we were thrilled by the daring attempt of Hawker and Grieve to bridge the Atlantic in one flight. They failed bravely, but led the way for the next attempt, which succeeded. The United States also contributed its share in the great effort of N.C. 4, which covered the ocean in two bounds. But the venture of R 34 is a different thing. She is attempting to do in the air what our great ocean-going liners have been doing for half-a-century. Two great English-speaking peoples will wish good luck to General Maitland, Major Scott, the other officers, and the crew. Both peoples will also rejoice in the presence on board of Lieutenant-Commander Lansdowne, of the United States Navy.

WAR PENSIONS.

Commenting on Sir Douglas Haig's evidence before the Select Committee on Pensions, The Times says:—Not only the Army, but all of us have reason to thank Sir Douglas Haig for being so outspoken. Every decent man among those who did not go to the war registered a vow when others went that, so far as money and organisation could prevent it, they should not be the sufferers on our account. The old way with the Army was to butter the men with fine words when we were at war, and when peace came to let them supplement their miserable pensions with organ-grinding and a free meal at an annual patriotic dinner. But if that callousness was possible when the Army was recruited, for the most part, from the failures and ne'er-do-wells, it is not possible now, and most of us thought that we had made decent arrangements for the welfare of those who had served their country, and of their dependents. But the warmth of Sir Douglas Haig's criticisms yesterday shows that the undoubtedly good intentions of the country are, to some extent, being defeated.

GENERAL BOTHA.

Reticence and a wise silence have often had their part in building the reputation of General Botha, remarks The Times. He goes back to South Africa to-day after a very silent visit, and none here or in South Africa will think less of him because he has said little. Indeed, many of General Smuts's best friends have had to note the contrast in this way between him and General Botha. It may be a convention of modern statesmanship to say what you think when the spirit moves you, but it has evident disadvantages. General Botha is indispensable to the immediate future of South Africa, and if his health holds, and he can be convinced that he is really needed, he will not retire.

CUBAN WITCH DOCTOR LYNCHED.

The Times Havana Correspondent states:—The first case of lynching occurred on Saturday in a suburb of Havana. A negro witch doctor having been caught stealing a young white girl, in order to utilise parts of the body for savage purposes, the crowd raided the prison, placed a rope round the negro's neck, and attached it to the tail of a mule, then dragged him at the gallop through the streets till he died. At Matanzas, also, a girl has disappeared, and on investigation the body was discovered in the cemetery lacking brains, tongue and heart. Five negroes are detained on suspicion. A crowd made an attack, but was repulsed by troops. The negroes tried to escape from prison, but were shot. The people are clamouring for special measures.

THE PEACE.

ROYAL PROCLAMATION.

THANKSGIVING SERVICES.

NEXT SUNDAY APPOINTED.

At a Privy Council held at Buckingham Palace yesterday, the King signed a Proclamation declaring a definite Treaty of Peace between himself and the German Government. The Proclamation will be publicly read this morning at the usual places, with quaint and impressive ceremonies. The text of it is as follows:—

Whereas, a definite Treaty of Peace between us and the Associated Governments and the German Government was concluded at Versailles on the 28th of June last;

In conformity thereunto, We have thought fit hereby to command that the same be published in due course throughout all our Dominions, and We do declare to all our loving subjects our will and pleasure, that upon the exchange of the ratifications thereto, the said Treaty of Peace shall be observed inviolably, as well by sea as by land, in all places whatsoever, strictly charging and commanding our loving subjects to take notice thereof, and to conform themselves thereunto accordingly.

The King also at the Privy Council meeting yesterday made an Order-in-Council appointing Sunday next as a day of general thanksgiving in the churches for the conclusion of peace.

The following official statement has been issued:—

The Government desires that in the various churches throughout the country on next Sunday (6th instant) there shall be thanksgiving for the signing of peace.

STATEMENT BY MR. BONAR LAW.

In the House of Commons yesterday,

Sir Donald MacLean asked Mr. Bonar Law whether he could give any information to the House regarding the celebration of peace.

Mr. Bonar Law—It has been decided that a Thanksgiving Service shall be held throughout the country on Sunday next. A Service will be held at St. Paul's Cathedral at 10 a.m., at which Their Majesties will be present. Mr. Speaker will also be present, and members of the House of Commons will be invited to attend. Ladies will also be invited. Morning dress will be worn. Mr. Speaker has arranged that his Secretary will receive the names of any hon. members who wish tickets for themselves and their wives. Similarly, the Lord Chancellor and members of the House of Lords will also be invited to attend. It is contemplated further to hold a national rejoicing on Saturday, July 19. Celebrations will be held in London in which the Navy, the Army, the Air Force, and various subsidiary services and the mercantile marine will be represented, and in which the American troops, who will be travelling through London at the time, will be invited to take part. (Cheers.) Detailed announcements will be made on an early date. The day, it is hoped, will be one of general rejoicing in London and all parts of the country, and I hope also throughout the Empire. Local authorities and communities will organise celebrations in their own way.

LORD CURZON'S STATEMENT.

Earl Curzon, replying to the Marquis of Crewe, in the House of Lords, made a statement regarding the Peace celebrations corresponding with the announcement made by Mr. Bonar Law in the House of Commons.

THE TERMINATION OF THE WAR.

Mr. Bonar Law, in replying to Major Newman and Sir J. D. Rees, in the House of Commons yesterday, said that, by the terms of the present War (Definition) Act His Majesty might declare what date was to be treated as the date of the termination of the war, and the date so declared was as nearly as might be the date of the exchange or deposit of the ratifications of the Treaties of Peace. The Defence of the Realm Acts, and the regulations made thereunder, would, he understood, lapse on the date so fixed, except in so far as the regulations might be kept alive by any other statute.

Sir J. D. Rees—Is the right hon. gentleman aware that these restrictions are not regarded as pin-pricks, but as wounds?

Mr. France asked when would the Government fix that day.

Mr. Bonar Law—No decision has yet been taken. It must be after the ratification of the Treaty.

Major Newman—Suppose one country, say China, refuses to ratify the Treaty?

Mr. Bonar Law—I think arrangements are made that after a certain number of the Great Powers have signed the Treaty, it is considered ratified.

TO-MORROW'S PEACE DEBATE.

Great interest is being taken in the arrangements for to-morrow's debate on peace. It is interesting to note that the House of Commons cannot alter any of the details of the Treaty. The Prime Minister will open the debate, and will bring in the Bill enabling the Treaty to be put into force. Sir Donald McLean will follow. The Prime Minister's speech will last considerably longer than an hour. An unusually large number of members have already intimated to the Whips their desire to speak, and the debate is being anticipated with keen interest.

LORD FRENCH'S BOOK.

SIR H. SMITH-DORRIEN'S POSITION.

WAR OFFICE'S LIMITED FUNCTION.

On the motion for the adjournment of the House of Commons last night,

Mr. Holmes raised the question of the refusal of the War Office to allow Sir Horace Smith-Dorrien to reply to the attack made upon him by Lord French. He said that Sir H. Smith-Dorrien ought to be allowed to state his case, or to have it stated for him by the Secretary of State for War.

Mr. Churchill said that the speech of the hon. member itself showed the absolute impracticability of the House's attempting to deal with the kind of highly technical and controversial issues which were involved in past military events. Unfortunately difficulties were caused by partial publications, but the War Office had a limited function and discharged it according to rules. They did not consider that an unemployed Field-Marshal was in a position different from that of a retired officer, but they were advised that Sir Horace Smith-Dorrien as Governor of Gibraltar was, in every sense of the word, a military officer serving under the War Office, and they had forbidden him to publish any reply to the criticisms on his conduct which had been made by Lord French. If they were to abandon that rule, they would [illegible] officers of every rank in the Army and Navy publishing and arguing matters of military and naval significance. [illegible]

Sir Donald MacLean [illegible] the reply of the War Secretary [illegible] satisfactory.

The House stood adjourned at 11. [illegible]

The two remaining brigades are commanded by officers of the Foot Guards.

SELECT COMMITTEE ON PENSIONS.

SIR DOUGLAS HAIG'S EVIDENCE.

DELAYS, HARDSHIP, AND DISTRESS.

OFFICERS' FAMILIES IN ABJECT POVERTY.

Field-Marshal Sir Douglas Haig, giving evidence before the Select Committee on Pensions in the House of Commons yesterday, said:—In the late summer of 1918 I was appalled by the evidence received as to the methods of the State to provide for the disabled. Not only were cases which were dealt with brought to my notice, but daily I received letters from all parts of the United Kingdom with the same piteous appeal. Since then matters have in some degree improved, but not so far as the officers are concerned. I hold strongly it is the duty of the State to provide for those who have suffered in the great war, but I am prepared to admit that there may be small gaps which must be filled by voluntary effort. The strain thrown on charitable institutions and the high pressure at which they are forced to work are sufficient condemnation of the Government methods and proof of the inadequacy of the State pensions. On discharge officers are in many cases left penniless. The War Office should not discharge a man until the Ministry of Pensions can take him over. In some cases members of the Medical Board are ignorant of the actual disease suffered. In others they are lacking in all sympathy and generosity. There is no uniformity in their decisions, and some treat every wretched individual who appears before them as a malingerer. I strongly advise the appointment of a selected combatant officer to act as assessor. The action of the War Office in putting officers on insufficient half-pay can only be described as inhuman.

GOVERNMENT DELAYS.

The delays in Government departments produce much hardship and distress, including the delay in the assessment of disability retired pay owing to the non-receipt of papers from the Air Ministry and War Office, the delay in obtaining temporary grants from the Civil Liabilities Commission, owing to strict adherence to the intricate conditions, and delay in the completion of training arrangements by the Ministry of Labour. I strongly advocate more generous provision for the wives and children of officers, also for the education of the children. On their present allowance families live in abject poverty, and the widows are unable to give proper education to their children. The total disability rates for both officers and men are inadequate. Cases have been brought to my notice in which officers drawing the maximum rate are in a state of abject poverty. In the case of other ranks the flat rate of 27s. 6d., with 20 per cent. bonus places a disabled man at a pecuniary disadvantage compared with his neighbours. The weekly allowance should be increased to at least 40s. I would urge a more generous and sympathetic treatment to all suffering from gas-poisoning, shell shock, and neurasthenia. It is admitted that their suitable treatment is no easy matter. Employers are shy of giving them appointments. The many piteous appeals brought to my notice cry for immediate reform in the method of treatment.

"A DISGRACE TO A CIVILISED STATE."

Sir Douglas also called attention to the attitude of the trade unions. Continuing, he said: I cannot close my evidence without calling attention to the scandalous treatment of those who earned pre-war pensions. Many of them served in the present war. The wretched pittance for life-long service is a disgrace to a civilised State. I wish to pay a tribute to the courteous and sympathetic attitude of the present Ministry of Pensions and of the excellent work of the "Officers' Friend." The decentralisation of the Ministry's work is a step forward, and I urge that a representative of the "Officers' Friend" be attached to each centre. There is at present no official outside London who can give sympathetic advice and assistance to officers. To sum up on behalf of those who have suffered in the country's cause, and especially on behalf of their wives and children, I appeal for (1) a greater generosity on the part of the State; (2) a single authority to coordinate the work of Ministries; (3) an improvement in the machinery that is working enormously, laboriously, no doubt, but too slowly, and in many cases unsympathetically.

Sir Douglas stated that he had had many cases of officers absolutely starving, and gave particulars of a number of cases of hardship, etc. He thought an appeal tribunal, independent of the Pensions Board, would restore confidence.

HOSTILITY OF TRADE UNIONS.

Dealing with what he described as the hostility of trade unions to train disabled men in obtaining employment, Sir Douglas cited the case of a man who was trained in a technical school, and at the end of his training received a certificate. He obtained an offer of employment, but the Boilermakers' Union objected to his going to work. [illegible] Sir Douglas. This man had been trained in a Government school, and had his certificate. The trade union ought to have allowed the [illegible].

The Chairman read a letter from the Southampton Branch Boilermakers' Society to the Hampshire War Pensions Committee regarding the matter, stating it was impossible to accept as a member of a skilled craft such as theirs, requiring long apprenticeship, a man with only two months' school training.

The Chairman said that it was a reasonable trade union regulation.

Sir Douglas replied that the Government train disabled men. They turn them out with a certificate of efficiency, and, though a man gets an appointment, he is unable to take his place in the works because a trade union objects.

PEACE AND POVERTY.

Sir Douglas added that the nation was expected to celebrate peace. How, he asked, can the nation be expected to rejoice when those who have given their all in the struggle are in such a state of want as many of them are reduced to be? No man should suffer because he has served his country. My desire is to get the best possible terms for every man. You surely do not want to pauperise any man who has risked his life on the field of battle? You want to be generous.

Sir John Butcher—And just.

Sir Douglas—Yes, and just.

In answer to questions, Sir Douglas said that the Medical Board should be reconstructed so that an officer should be appointed on each Board as an assessor.

The Chairman—Do you think it would be desirable to have a representative of the men on the Boards?

Sir Douglas—I think the men have full confidence in their officers. He went on to say that there was an impression abroad that instructions had been given to reduce grants. There was a general tendency to lower them.

The Chairman said that at Chelsea he believed they had been raised.

Sir Douglas agreed as to the desirability of an independent tribunal for appeal in regard to the amount of pensions.

CIVIL SERVICE ESTIMATES.

THE NEW COMMERCIAL COUNSELLORS.

The Committee on the Civil Service Estimates met yesterday, Mr. Turton presiding. On the estimates for the Department of Overseas Trade,

Major Newman asked what was the difference between a Consul and the Commercial Counsellors which it was proposed to appoint. He thought that there would be a great saving if the Consular Service and the Department of Overseas Trade were amalgamated. At the present moment British capital and undertakings were being very badly treated in the Argentine. Apparently the Argentine Government at present would like to freeze British industries out of the Argentine altogether.

Sir Arthur Steel Maitland said that the question of general treatment by a foreign country of British capital invested in it was not a localised question, and consequently would be dealt with by the Commercial Attaché. The duties of a Commercial Attaché were to collect information from various Consuls and consolidate it and draw general inferences. Fresh posts were being established in Turkey, Siberia, Cuba, and the Balkans.

The vote was agreed to.

On the estimates for the Office of Works,

Captain Stanley Wilson said that now that peace had been signed it was really necessary to take steps to stop the extravagance of the Government.

Mr. Morrison also complained of the large increase. In the year before the war the estimates were £142,000. This year they were £295,000. He said that a very large number of young ladies were employed in the Office of Works—apparently Sir A. Mond employed young ladies of such tender years that they spent part of the day in having lessons in the basement of his office. (Laughter.) He suggested that ex-soldiers should replace them.

Sir A. Mond said that the expenditure would come down, but it would be wrong for him to say it would come down to pre-war figures.

The vote was agreed to.

THE ORDER OF THE BRITISH EMPIRE.

Among those who were decorated at Buckingham Palace on the 26th ult. was Mrs. Henry Wardle, Motihari, India, who received the Order of the British Empire. Mrs. Wardle is a daughter of Mr. R. G. Bull, late Resident Magistrate, Newry, and sister of the late Brigadier-General George Bull, D.S.O.

FROM "THE TIMES" OF TO-DAY.

DOMINION HOME RULE.

The Times Special Correspondents who are dealing with the subject of Irish peace, discuss in the fourth article the basis of a possible settlement. The writer warns parties that the Irish question is a national, and not a party, affair, and, asserting that Mr. Asquith is plainly engaging in an attempt to make Ireland once more a party matter, declares that the Liberal Leader and his friends have no right to revive the old discredited method of using it for party ends. Great Britain, continues the Correspondent, cannot, and will not, concede the demand for a republic. The greater the emphasis with which this statement is repeated by all parties in the State, the better the chances of understanding and of settlement. It would be superfluous to investigate the reasons in detail. On the subject of Dominion Home Rule, the Correspondent writes:—There is a firm conviction among many well-informed and thinking Irishmen that the Sinn Fein Party would gladly abandon the republican demand in exchange for what is known as Dominion Home Rule. It is more than likely. Dominion Home Rule has hitherto had a very precise meaning in Ireland. It differs from the republican demand in so far as it retains the common link of the Crown, but in little else. It contemplates the grant to Ireland of a place in the Constitution of the Empire similar to that of Canada, Australia, or South Africa. Under it Ireland would have power to maintain an Army and Navy. She would be in complete control of her own Customs. She need be under no obligation, unless by a previous arrangement, which could only be enforced with difficulty, to pay her fair share of the war debt. She would, save in one particular, be virtually independent. There is one tie which more strongly than any other binds our great Dominions to us in common citizenship of the Empire. It is the Crown. The catch-cry of modern Ireland sets that tie at naught. If we are to take Sinn Fein at its word, how tenuous that bond of common sovereignty would be! If Ireland ever changes her present position of a Kingdom for the status of a Dominion, it must be on other terms, and with greater assurances of permanency. There are attributes of full Dominion status which the British democracy will be slow to confer upon Ireland at the present time. There are risks which the British people cannot be expected to take. Whatever the powers conceded, it would be useless to grant to Ireland a form of government which certainly would be used immediately as a lever to exact a fuller demand. The development of political institutions in these islands cannot be stereotyped for all time by any written Constitution. If once a system of self-government be established in Ireland a process of development will have been inaugurated. This is inevitable, and it will remain for statesmen of the future, both in Great Britain and in Ireland, to guide that process to the common advantage of both countries. But it is necessary that the measure to be conferred shall have some elements of permanency. It must contain certain safeguards for its own fair trial. It is not enough to trust to probabilities. The Union is doomed. In a world peopled by economic men, raceless and without sentiment, it would have been the perfect system of government for these islands. But it has failed because the Southern Irishman rejects its advantages, and passionately prefers his own more primitive methods. It was a great triumph of statesmanship, a fine ideal, but it could not survive in the island of destiny. The vital necessities of Great Britain and the social and economic conditions of the British Islands forbid the grant of full independence to Ireland, under whatever name. Between independence, on the one hand, and the Legislative Union, on the other, a real, and not merely a nominal, compromise must be found. It must be sought in accordance with the principles which we have stated.

STATE INDUSTRIES.

The Government have succeeded, says The Times, in staving off the serious opposition which was threatened to the Transport Bill by concessions to the dock authorities and road-using interests. The conference with the Prime Minister, at which the compromise was made, was specially interesting for the light which it threw on the present state of mind of the Government. SIR H. SMITH-DORRIEN'S POSITION.

WAR OFFICE'S LIMITED FUNCTION.

On the motion for the adjournment of the House of Commons last night,

Mr. Holmes raised the question of the refusal of the War Office to allow Sir Horace Smith-Dorrien to reply to the attack made upon him by Lord French. He said that Sir H. Smith-Dorrien ought to be allowed to state his case, or to have it stated for him by the Secretary of State for War.

Mr. Churchill said that the speech of the hon. member itself showed the absolute impracticability of the House's attempting to deal with the kind of highly technical and controversial issues which were involved in past military events. Undoubtedly difficulties were caused by partial publications, but the War Office had a limited function, and discharged it according to rules. They did not consider that an unemployed Field-Marshal was in a position different from that of a retired officer, but they were advised that Sir Horace Smith-Dorrien, as Governor of Gibraltar, was, in every sense of the word, a military officer serving under the War Office, and they had forbidden him to publish any reply to the criticisms on his conduct which had been made by Lord French. If they were to abandon that rule, they would find officers of every rank in the Army and Navy publishing and arguing matters of military and naval significance that would be fatal to discipline. It did not really impose an undue hardship on Sir Horace Smith-Dorrien. He said, without hesitation, that no injury was done to him. He had an opportunity of laying his case before the Army Council, and of asking whether they would allow him to reply. They did not think that it was desirable that he should take part in the controversy. History would deal with all these matters in proper perspective, and show the country where it had been misled in naval and military matters, as well as in political matters, affecting the war. Those who waited would not be the people who would suffer most because of the premature judgment of their contemporaries. The proper course to adopt, and he believed that it could not be long delayed, was to lay on the table of the House a series of publications consisting of authentic documents bearing on naval and military episodes explained by the General Staff and others, which would provide for the whole nation the raw material on which comments could be made. The propriety of such a publication was being considered by the Government.

Sir Donald MacLean said that he considered the reply of the War Secretary thoroughly unsatisfactory.

The House stood adjourned at 11.30.

ARMY APPOINTMENTS.

The War Office announces that the following officers have been selected for appointments to command regular brigades in divisions at home: Brev. Col. (temp. Brig.-Gen.) F. W. Ramsay, C.M.G., D.S.O.; Brev. Col. (temp. Brig.-Gen.) H. C. Jackson, D.S.O.; Brev. Col. A. C. Daly, C.B.; Brev. Col. R. O. H. Livesay, D.S.O.; Brev. Col. (temp. Brig.-Gen.) G. V. Hordern, C.B., C.M.G.; Brev. Col. (temp. Brig.-Gen.) E. S. Girdwood, C.B.; Col. (temp. Brig.-Gen.) F. A. Dudgeon, C.B.; Brev. Col. (temp. Brig.-Gen.) A. H. Marindin, D.S.O.; Brev. Col. (temp. Brig.-Gen.) J. Campbell, C.B., C.M.G., D.S.O.; Brev. Col. W. J. Dugan, C.M.G., D.S.O.; Brev. Col. (temp Brig.-Gen.) T. S. Lambert, C.B., C.M.G.; Brev. Col. (temp. Brig.-Gen.) G. T. C. Carter-Campbell, C.B., D.S.O.; Brev. Col. (temp. Brig.-Gen.) P. C. B. Skinner, C.M.G., D.S.O.; Brev. Col. (temp. Brig.-Gen.) C. Coffin, V.C., C.B., D.S.O.; Brev. Col. (temp. Brig.-Gen.) H. H. Higginson, C.B., D.S.O.; Brev. Col. (temp. Brig.-Gen.) C. H. T. Lucas, C.M.G., D.S.O.

The two remaining brigades are commanded by officers of the Foot Guards.

A COUNCIL OF FIVE.

NEW MACHINERY AT PARIS.

THE TURKISH DELEGATES.

THE AUSTRIAN TREATY.

The Supreme Council of the Peace Conference, says a Press Association telegram, dated Paris, Tuesday, will henceforth be a Council of Five, and will hold its first formal meeting to-morrow. Plans for expediting the work were discussed to-day, and the following decisions were arrived at:—

(1) That important Notes, instead of being referred to the Supreme Council, where there might be several days' delay, should go straight to the proper Expert Commission for examination and report.

(2) That the various delegations should bring to to-morrow's meeting lists of names, from which should be chosen three Committees—(a) On the execution of the German Treaty; (b) on the organisation of the Reparations Commission; (c) on the Bulgarian frontier.

(3) That the Rumanian delegates and the Russian Ambassador, Maklakoff, shall be heard on the Bessarabian frontier question.

THE AUSTRIAN TREATY.

REPARATION CLAUSES.

With regard to the reparation clauses of the Austrian Treaty, the whole of which will, it appears, be completed by the end of this week, says a Press Association message, dated Paris, Tuesday, it is learned that these terms are framed on exactly the same basis as the clauses in the German Treaty, except in relation to Austrian pre-war debts. Such part of this pre-war debt as was guaranteed by salt mines and similar national sources of revenue, will have to be distributed among those States which have become separate from Austria since the war. There will also be provision for reparation in kind to the Jugo-Slavs and Czecho-Slovaks, consisting of cattle and agricultural implements.

THE GERMAN-JAPANESE RUMOURS.

Telegraphing from Paris on Tuesday, the Press Association's Correspondent says:—With regard to the discredited rumour recently published, to the effect that a secret Treaty existed between Germany and Japan, Reuter's Correspondent learns from authoritative Conference circles that in the course of the war Germany made several tempting offers to Japan to change sides and desert the Allies. One of these, perhaps the most important, was made in 1917, when Germany offered Japan a free hand with the Dutch Colonies, including Java and Sumatra. This interesting fact came to the knowledge of the British Government, and was communicated by it to the Dutch Government, which it was considered might be interested. The fact that these offers, which, it is needless to say, received no consideration from the Japanese Government, were actually made, possibly explains the source of the discredited reports of the existence of an agreement between Germany and Japan.

PEACE RECEPTION IN PARIS.

A Reuter message, dated Paris, Monday, says—The reception which was held this evening at the Hotel de Ville to celebrate the signing of the Peace Treaty, was a brilliant success. President and Madame Poincaré arrived at 9.45 p.m. A fine concert was given in the Salon des Arcades, at which members of the Cabinet, delegates to the Peace Conference, prominent members of the various Allied diplomatic bodies, and many generals, Senators, and Deputies were present. The crowd of interested spectators which had gathered in front of the Hotel de Ville enthusiastically cheered the President of the Republic and the various foreign plenipotentiaries as they arrived.

RATIFICATION IN A FEW WEEKS.

The Paris Journal states that in order to hasten the date when the Peace Treaty with Germany will come into operation, as soon as it has been ratified by Germany and the three Allied Powers, each of these States will appoint a delegate to declare at a meeting to be held in Paris, that the Peace Treaty has been regularly confirmed. The declaration of this meeting will be the signal for the immediate enforcements of the peace terms. The Journal hopes that the steps taken by the Allies will result in action being promptly taken, not only in the German National Assembly, but in the Prussian and Bavarian Parliaments, which will have to approve of the cession to the Allies of parts of their territories. The same paper considers that the Treaty will be finally confirmed in a few weeks.

OBSCURE SITUATION IN TURKEY.

FRENCH SUSPICION OF ENGLAND.

A Paris telegram, dated Monday, says—Writing in the Journal des Debats on a Note sent by M. Clemenceau to the Turkish Delegation, M. Gauvain complains particularly that the Emir Feissul, supported, as he says, by British agents, is working to achieve complete independence by a display of strength. We are met at every step, he adds, by agents, who, under various pretexts, hinder the French in watching over and directing their own affairs. It is true that a state of war exists with Turkey, but it exists in the case of each country, and it is strange that the British, the Americans, and the Italians take up the attitude which they do in Turkey, and that at the same time our hands are tied. Such a situation could not continue if the Conference were acquainted with Eastern affairs and knew how to find a solution.

TURKISH DELEGATES LEAVING PARIS.

The Press Association's Paris Correspondent, telegraphing on Monday, says:—The Supreme Council of the Allies will meet at 4 o'clock to-morrow to decide upon the procedure to be adopted henceforth for drawing up the various treaties to be concluded with Austria, Bulgaria, and Turkey. The Austrian Treaty is now complete, with the exception of the military clause. In consequence of the Allied Note the Turkish delegation, it is understood in French diplomatic circles, has decided to leave France, and will take its departure on Wednesday.

It is stated that treaties similar to that concluded with Poland, of which the main object is to safeguard the rights of minorities, will be entered into with Rumania and Czecho-Slovakia.

As a result of an exchange of views at the Peace Conference between the Belgian Minister for Foreign Affairs and the Dutch Foreign Minister, it has been decided to appoint an International Commission consisting of fourteen members, the five Great Powers, Belgium and Holland being represented each by two delegates.

GERMAN DELEGATES AT VERSAILLES.

A Versailles telegram, dated Monday, says:—It is announced that from now the German delegates will be able to move about more freely in the town, accompanied by an inspector of police, but are prohibited from entering cafes and other public establishments. They will continue to have free access to the part of the park adjacent to the Basin of Neptune. They are also permitted to walk in other parts of the park if provided with permits, which are available only for one day.

THE LANGUAGE OF THE PEACE TREATY.

In the House of Commons yesterday,

Mr. Harmsworth, in reply to Mr. Bottomley, said that it had been decided that only the English official text of the Peace Treaty should be laid on the table of the House. Copies of the French official text would be placed in the Library for reference. There was no official German text.

Mr. Bottomley—In what language is the Treaty which the Germans have signed?

Mr. Harmsworth—In French and English.

Mr. Bottomley—If the Germans have signed a Treaty in a language which they do not understand, is it not a splendid excuse for their wriggling out of their obligations?

There was no reply.

ANGLO-AMERICAN UNION.

A New York telegram, dated Monday, says: Responding to a cordial 4th of July message from the British section of the English-speaking Union, the American section has telegraphed:—"Fully realising our present and future interdependence, to-day the Americans respond whole-heartedly to the noble words of the British Constitutional King and leader, when he says: 'The American and British people, brothers in arms, will continue for ever to be brothers in peace.' Henceforth, our manifested open reunion in spirit and arms should safeguard our civilisation and those of weaker races against future aggression."

THE PRINCE OF WALES.

Last night's Court Circular announces that the Prince of Wales has left Buckingham Palace to take up his residence at St. James's Palace. A separate circular, dated from his new home, records the Prince's engagements.

BOLSHEVIK ADVANCE.

BRITISH SEAPLANES IN ACTION.

SERIOUS POSITION ON FINNISH BORDER.

Reuter's Agency learns:—

The advance of Bolsheviks continues on the Eastern front, and, according to latest information, they are now two days' march from Perm, and are fighting on the Upper Ufa and to the west of the settlement of Gamaldyeffka, in the Orenburg region. The immediate aim of the Reds seems to be the capture of Perm, which they are trying to outflank from the south. Enemy units have already crossed Kama River at Okhansk and Ossa.

Admiral Koltchak's retreat goes on without any considerable engagements or much loss. On the Southern front, General Denikin's army has advanced. Kharkoff has been occupied. An engagement has taken place north of Valuika. On the North-Western front, the advance in the direction of Petrograd continues. On Lake Onega flotillas of both sides are operating.

The Press Association Special Correspondent says:—Our seaplanes have successfully bombed the enemy positions, greatly damaging buildings, and destroyed a train with a direct hit. Two seaplanes were shot down by machine guns and one of them wrecked, but the aviator succeeded in returning to our lines. There were no casualties in these raids.

A Bolshevik regimental routine order which has fallen into our hands states that officers on the headquarters of divisions, brigades, and other formations, have been in the habit of taking women to the front with them, the officers on armoured trains being particular offenders. Officers are warned to cease this practice under penalty of courtmartial. When off duty soldiers may wear mufti, and are under no restrictions as regards bounds. Deserters state the new commander of the Bolsheviks, Spiridonoff, is shooting down deserters in face of the enemy. This probably explains the recent determined resistance shown by his troops.

The Press Association's and Daily Telegraph's Correspondent, in a message from Copenhagen yesterday, says:—According to Helsingfors messages, the situation on the Russian border is most serious. It is evident that the Bolsheviks are preparing a final offensive against Finland, and are concentrating forces continually at the frontier. There are now 25,000 men round Viborg, and it is suggested that the main attack will take place there. The Finnish military authorities are expecting an attack every hour.

A Copenhagen telegram of yesterday says:—General von der Goltz has entirely thrown off the mask, says a Libau telegram from the Official Lettish Press Bureau there, and is no longer hiding behind the Needras Lettish Government, which has failed. Now that the German-Baltic Landeswehr has been practically wiped out by Esthonian and North Lettland troops, he is warring against Lettland and Esthonia with undisguisedly Imperial German force, and North Lett troops. The report from Reval that Riga has been taken by Lett troops is premature, the attack of National, Esthonian, and Lettish troops on the River Jaegel front, six and a quarter miles north of Riga, having been repulsed by Germans, who used poison gas, and General von der Goltz has established martial law at Riga, and proclaimed himself Governor-General. He has also appointed the German, Major Armin, Governor of Riga, and has brought up German reinforcements to oppose the Esthonian and Lettish troops.

The concentric advance of Lettish detachments from the North and the Lithuanian Army from the South on the fortress of Dvinsk, which is still in Bolshevists' hands, is progressing. The two contingents are already in touch with one another west of the town.

STATE OF GERMANY.

SUPPRESSING LAWLESSNESS.

A Berlin telegram, dated Monday, states:—Herr Noske, Minister of Defence, has prohibited the sale of arms and ammunition in all regions in which a state of siege prevails. As the orders of the railwaymen's leaders are not being respected, instructions have now been given that every further attempt to interrupt traffic and prevent resumption of work by acts of terrorism shall be put down with a strong hand.

A Press Association Berlin message, dated Tuesday, says:—Owing to a strike on the Silesian railways, the Government, according to the Neue Politischen Nachrichten, have requested Marshal Foch to postpone the transport of the last Polish troops until order has been restored. A rigorous state of siege has again been declared in Dusseldorf.

Serious excesses occurred on Monday at Bielefeld, following the food disturbances of last Friday (says a Berlin telegram). The guard at the Town Hall was disarmed, and the Town Hall and some empty barracks were occupied. Numerous rifles and large quantities of ammunition were seized. The railway station finally fell into the hands of the mob, and a number of works were forced to close down. The Imperial Commission has sent to Detmold for the assistance of Government troops. Two lives were lost and a number of people were badly wounded in the course of these excesses.

According to a telegram from Hamburg, the entry of the Government troops into Hamburg and Altona is proceeding according to plan. The occupation of the eastern part of Hamburg passed off without incident.

GERMAN TAX ON PROPERTY.

A DRASTIC LEVY.

The Press Association's Berlin Correspondent, in a message dated Sunday, states:—Herr Erzberger, Minister of Finance, will shortly propose to the Cabinet a scheme for a tax upon property which is expected to provide the National Exchequer with some three and a-half thousand million to four thousand million pounds. It will begin with 10 per cent. on £1,000, and rise rapidly to 60 per cent. Very large fortunes will be taxed 60 to 70 per cent. It is said that the tax will primarily admit of the calling in of a large part of the paper money.

BELFAST SHIPBUILDING.

SIX MONTHS' OUTPUT.

A considerable amount of new tonnage was turned out by the Belfast shipyards during the six months which have just ended. The firms are still mainly engaged upon the production of standard ships ordered by the Shipping Controller, and subsequently purchased by a number of private firms. During the six months thirteen ships, with an aggregate tonnage of 93,000 tons, were launched from the Belfast yards. Messrs. Harland and Wolff were responsible for seven, and Messrs. Workman, Clark, and Co. for six. All the ships were standard vessels of the "B," "G," and "N" types, except the Bibby liner, Yorkshire, and the Commonwealth and Dominion liner, Port Caroline. Only one of the vessels exceed 10,000 tons, where, as in pre-war days, the Queen's Island firm's average was 15,000 tons. There are still a number of the "B," "G," and "N" type of standard vessels under construction at Belfast.

ALTERATION WORK ON ADMIRALTY VESSELS.

During the past six months the Belfast firms have carried out a large amount of alteration work upon vessels released by the Admiralty. There is at present about 100,000 tons of this shipping held up in Belfast port. The vessels include the Royal mail boats Andes, Asturias, Almanyora, and Eliro; the Pacific Steam Navigation Company's Orbita, the Union Castle liner Edinburgh Castle, the Orient liner Orvieto, the Ellerman liner City of London, and the Belfast Steamship Company's Magic. Some of these vessels involved a considerable amount of work, but the Ellerman liner, City of London, will be completed and restored to normal service next week.

The White Star liner Olympic will arrive in Belfast next week for alterations.

WARRENPOINT SHIPYARD ACQUIRED.

The shipyard at Warrenpoint, established as a war emergency measure to turn out ferro-concrete vessels, and which was worked jointly by two well-known Belfast firms of contractors (Messrs. M'Laughlin and Harvey and Messrs. J. and R. Thompson), has just been acquired by Mr. William Giddis (Messrs. William Giddis and Sons, engineers, Donegall street, Belfast), on behalf of a shipbuilding syndicate. The new owners intend to develop the shipbuilding industry at Warrenpoint upon modern and up-to-date lines.

The new syndicate, it is understood, intends to adopt the new principle of electric welding of the steel plates, instead of the system of riveting and caulking. Electric welding is destined to play an important part in shipbuilding in the future. It is stated that the new yard has already orders in hand approximating £1,000,000, and that the future prospects for the concern are extremely bright.

MR. SEDDON AND SINN FEIN.

THE DUBLIN LABOUR MOVEMENT.

Mr. J. A. Seddon, M.P., the well-known Labour leader expressed his views on Sinn Fein and Bolshevism to a largely attended meeting convened by the Irish Unionist Alliance. Geraldine Lady De Ros was in the chair.

He described Sinn Fein and Bolshevism as twin sisters founded on Hatred, governed by no moral laws, and a greater menace to civilisation than the militarism over which the Allies had triumphed. His experiences in Dublin during the strike of 1913 had convinced him that the Dublin Labour movement was revolutionary, and that Ireland consisted of two separate nations, of whom it might be said that "never the twain would meet." As one who had been a Home Ruler, he thought that a solution might be found in Federal Devolution.

IRISH HOUSING BILL.

CONTRAST WITH ENGLISH SCHEME.

RATEPAYERS' LIABILITIES.

THE "POUND FOR POUND" OFFER.

A Standing Committee of the House of Commons, presided over by Mr. T. P. O'Connor, considered yesterday morning the Housing of the Working Classes (Ireland) Bill.

Mr. Kelly raised on an amendment the question as to whether the rural districts were included in the scope of the bill. The finance of the bill, too, he said, seemed extremely dangerous. The Irish authorities were being treated like the Germans, for whose relief the Treasury were giving £1 for every £1 subscribed by charitable societies. In this bill the Treasury put up £1 for every £1 of rent collected. The English bill applied to all rural districts, but this bill only applied to 116 Irish towns, while in the small Irish towns and villages there was just as urgent a housing problem to solve. The Labourers Acts were held up, and could not, besides, be applied to housing in small towns, as they were intended for agricultural labourers. As to the finance, it was impossible to ask local authorities to undertake housing schemes while the amount with which the rates would become burdened ultimately was unascertainable. He estimated the annual charges on a £500 house at £47. The Chief Secretary was under the fallacy that one could always get half the economic rent in rent, or 9s. a week for a £500 house—the cheapest that one could build now; but in Newry one could not get more than 4s. 6d. The State would give another 4s. 6d., and the people of Newry would have to make it up to 18s. He appealed to the Chief Secretary to get the English provisions for Ireland. Every local authority would do its best to solve the housing problem if it knew that its liabilities were limited to a penny rate.

APPEAL TO ENGLISH MEMBERS.

Mr. Lynn asked the English members to treat generously Ireland, which was a part, and the poorer part, of the United Kingdom. It was only by their help that the Chief Secretary could get the good terms from the Treasury. They did not want to go into liabilities when they did not know what they were going to be. He hoped that the Chief Secretary would take a sympathetic view of the smaller towns without Town Commissioners. They wanted houses badly, and he hoped that some help would be given to them.

Mr. Coote pleaded that some legislation should be introduced into the bill that would make it applicable to rural districts, as in the English bill. He thought that they should know the amount of their liabilities. They would prefer to accept the English system.

AN ENGLISH SUPERSTITION.

Mr. Devlin said that it seemed as if the Irish members were coming humbly asking for a dole. They did not come in that spirit. There was a superstition in England that land purchase and other great reforms had been financed by this country. As a matter of fact, the loans had been honestly repaid, and the transactions had turned out advantageously to the British Exchequer. There was nothing more tragic in Ireland than the condition of the Irish villages. The housing conditions were as bad as they could possibly be. As to finances, the Chief Secretary declared in the House that none of the burden would fall upon the rates.

Mr. Macpherson—If economy was exercised.

Mr. Devlin said that that was very elastic. Who was to judge economy? If they were getting more favourable terms than under the English scheme, as the Chief Secretary claimed—they would rather have the English scheme where they knew where they were. He hoped that proper houses would be built, not sentry boxes, like some houses built by the Belfast Corporation. New slums had taken the place of old slums. In his judgment, the bulk of the working classes could not afford more than five or six shillings a week as rent. They were all agreed that they must understand what responsibilities the local authorities must bear if the problem was to be truly solved.

GOVERNMENT'S GENEROUS TREATMENT.

Mr. Macpherson said that he was astonished to hear the Government's rural housing provisions attacked. Wonderful advantages had accrued to Ireland from the Government's generous treatment in rural housing. One of the best Acts passed for Ireland was the Agricultural Labourers Act. Fifty thousand houses had been built under that Act on extraordinary generous terms, more generous than under any housing scheme in the world.

Captain Redmond pointed out that that Act dealt only with agricultural labourers, not with artisans living in rural districts and small towns.

Mr. Macpherson said that anyone earning less than half a crown a day could come under that Act. Villages with a population of fifteen hundred could come under this bill by appointing Municipal Commissioners. Villages with a smaller population were generally composed of agricultural labourers. A Select Committee of the Irish Convention had asked the Imperial Government to give a subsidy of 50 per cent. of the loan charges. This scheme was more generous, for it not only gave a subvention of 50 per cent. of the loan charges, but also of the upkeep charges. He disagreed with the figures given for the £500 house. The economic rent of such a house would be 15s.; it would be let at 7s. 6d., and the State would pay the other 7s. 6d. A deputation of municipal authorities had accepted this proposal. The English scheme would mean an extra penny on the rates, which were very high in many parts of Ireland. He believed that if his scheme were economically carried out the ratepayers would not have to pay a penny. The £500 house would not be a house, but a respectable house.

Mr. Moles said that he doubted that.

Mr. Kelly said that out of 30s. a week a man could not pay 7s. 6d. rent.

Mr. Macpherson said that wages had gone up in Ireland. If wages went down there was power to revise rents. Any Government would be foolish in giving its backing to a scheme without seeing that the local authorities took proper precautions in charging and collecting the rents. He asked the Irish members to consider his scheme carefully. He was willing to accept the English terms and a penny rate if they asked him.

Mr. MacVeigh suggested an adjournment to consider the question. In Newry, for instance, they could not get a 7s. 6d. rent, or get a house built under that scheme.

THE CHIEF SECRETARY'S PROPOSAL.

Mr. Kelly said that they had now to decide whether to amend the Chief Secretary's finance, or accept the English and Scottish terms. The Chief Secretary fixed a reasonable rent as half the economic rent, but the bill intended that the Local Government Board, in consultation with the local authorities, should fix the reasonable rent, considering all the factors. If the Chief Secretary's proposal was carried this became a farce. The amount of the subsidy, too, was to be calculated, not on the cost of building, but on the amount of rent collected. He asked the Chief Secretary to give definite assurances on these two points.

Mr. Macpherson said that the reasonable rent would be fixed by the local authorities and the Local Government Board. He could not guarantee if they fixed the rent of a £500 house at 4s. a week that the Treasury would give 11s. a week.

A FAIR RENT.

Captain Redmond said that a fair rent would be a sixth of a man's earnings. If a man was to pay 7s 6d. he must be earning 45s. a week, and very few were doing so. He challenged the Chief Secretary's statement that the municipal authorities had accepted the proposals. They had insisted that the Government should make up the deficit between the reasonable and the economic rent.

Mr. Kelly said that the municipal authorities were under the impression that the subsidy would be calculated on half the loan and the upkeep charges.

Mr. Macpherson said that the Treasury considered £ for £ the safest way for the taxpayer. He thought it very fair. If the scheme was economically carried out there would be no deficit. £ for £ collected was the most definite proposal that he could give.

Mr. MacVeagh asked the Chief Secretary if he stood by his declaration at Dublin, that the Treasury would pay by subsidy the difference between the economic rent and a reasonable rent which people would be able to pay.

Mr. Macpherson said that that formed the basis of the bill, only his proposals now were more definite. He said now that they would get £1 for every £1 of rent collected.

Mr. Moles said that there was always a contingent liability. It should be met by the Treasury, and should not fall upon the local authority.

Captain Redmond said that the deputation understood from the Chief Secretary that the Government would pay the difference between a reasonable and the economic rent. In many parts people could only pay 5s., and somebody must pay the deficit.

Mr. Macpherson said that the Government were handsomely offering £ for £. He was fulfilling what he said in Dublin, and making a bargain which any reasonable body of people would accept.

Mr. Moles said that this assumed that the reasonable rent was half the economic rent, which was a fallacy.

The Committee adjourned till to-day, when the Chief Secretary will be asked to agree to the supersession of the £ for £ arrangement in favour of a proposal that the Treasury shall defray the whole expense between a reasonable and an economic rent.

IRISH DIVORCE ACTION.

In the Divorce Court, London, yesterday, Mrs. Cecilia Lowry, Abbotsford, University road, Belfast, petitioned for divorce from her husband, Gerald Lowry, because of his cruelty and adultery. There was no defence.

Evidence of adultery having been given, a decree nisi was granted to petitioner.

PARLIAMENT.

THE TRANSPORT BILL.

DOCKS, HARBOURS, AND ROADS.

IMPORTANT CONCESSIONS.

A ROADS ADVISORY COMMITTEE TO BE SET UP.

In the House of Commons yesterday,

On the Report stage of the Ministry of Ways and Communications Bill,

Mr. Joynson-Hicks moved the recommittal of the bill, in order to make a statement as to the agreement arrived at on the previous evening, when a deputation waited on the Prime Minister and Mr. Bonar Law. He said that the two main questions discussed were with regard to the docks and harbours and the roads. With regard to the docks and harbours, a new clause was agreed to which took away the right of the Minister to take possession or control of the docks, or to exercise all the powers now set out in Clause 3 of the bill. The new clause gave him certain powers with regard to the improvement of the docks for transport, but it gave the dock authorities the right of appeal to an arbitrator, if they thought the proposal injurious to their undertaking or to the trade of the port. With regard to roads, the Government had agreed to accept an amendment setting up a special Road Advisory Committee for the purpose of giving advice to and assisting the Minister, and for safeguarding any interests affected by the exercise of the powers under the bill in relation to roads, bridges, and vehicular traffic thereon. The concession did not go as far as some members wished, but it was a useful compromise. They had agreed that all the other amendments should be discussed on their merits. (Ironical Labour cheers.)

MR. BONAR LAW'S DENIAL.

Mr. Bonar Law said that he denied that there had been any attempt to square this matter behind the back of the House of Commons. The Government had from the first regarded this bill as one of vital importance, and it was simply a question of facing a great problem, which had developed into a great evil, in the most efficient manner. The measure was one which, in the nature of the case, must arouse, if not hostility, at any rate, fear and criticism, not on the part of private interests, but because it touched local patriotism and pride, which was one of the essential features of the life of the country. What the Government was aiming at was to have some co-ordinating policy with regard to the whole of our transport system. While it was the intention of the Government to continue local effort and machinery, they were making sure that the new Department would not be hampered in its work. The new Minister must be able to do his work without frivolous interference, but there was no intention to take over these local undertakings, and run them as a branch of a business at Whitehall. If we did not attempt something of the sort that was undertaken in the bill, and allowed things to drift we were heading straight for disaster. The Government had no objection in view, except to give to the country as quickly as possible the best and most comprehensive system of transport possible.

The motion was negatived.

A NEW CLAUSE.

Sir W. Pearce moved a new clause, which was read a first time, in order that it might form a basis of the amendments indicated by Mr. Joynson-Hicks, which the Government was prepared to accept. The clause took away the right of the Minister of Ways and Communication to take possession or control of the docks, but it provided that "if at any time during the period of two years after the passing of the Act the Minister shall consider that it is desirable in the national interest that the transport facilities and accommodation at the harbour, or at any dock or pier of the owners, should be improved or extended, or that the method of working should be altered, the Minister may, by order, for the purposes aforesaid, require the owners to execute within a reasonable time such improvement or extension or alteration in the method of working as the Order may prescribe."

An amendment to the clause was moved by Sir E. Geddes, which included the Manchester Ship Canal, but excluded "any harbour, dock, and pier being part of a railway undertaking."

Mr. Waterson accused the Government of having capitulated to the private interests.

LABOUR AND THE GOVERNMENT.

Mr. Sexton said that he was disappointed at the climb down of the Government. It was the vote of the Labour Party which alone saved the Government on Clause 3 when the bill was in Commons, and this was a base betrayal of their confidence. It was a lie to say that dock workers pursued a canny policy.

Sir F. Flannery said that the only ground for complaint that the Labour Party had was the discouragement of their hopes with regard to the nationalisation of the dock undertakings.

Mr. Wignall said that the Government change was bewildering.

Sir Eric Geddes said that if the clause had carried with it an alteration in the position of the docks which would have prevented co-ordination under the authority of the Minister he would not have accepted it. What the clause did was to make it impossible for the Minister, without coming to the House for an Act, to displace the Dock Boards. It was never intended that he should displace these Boards. The docks would remain inside the scope of the bill, and they would have to carry out any orders that were not considered injurious to the trade of the port, in which case there would be a right of appeal to an arbitrator. There had been no change of front, but the Government had now put into the bill what they had over and over again said was their intention.

After further discussion the amendment to the clause moved by Sir Eric Geddes was carried by 325 votes to 62.

SMOKING IN THE HOUSE.

While the division was being taken Sir R. Cooper asked if it was competent for an hon. member to be smoking within the precincts of the House. An hon. member was smoking, he said, at the end of the Opposition Bench.

The Speaker—It is competent for him to do so, but it is distinctly out of order. (Laughter.)

On the question of the adoption of the words in the clause which provide for the power of appeal to an arbitrator by owners of docks and piers who might consider themselves aggrieved,

Sir F. Flannery moved an amendment requiring that notice of the intention to appeal should be given within 30 days of the requirements of the Minister of Ways and Communications having been indicated.

This was agreed to.

A division was challenged on Sir W. Pearce's clause as amended. The clause was added to the bill by 336 votes to 55.

Sir F. Banbury moved a new clause, which was agreed to, providing that before any Order in Council under the Act was made, notice of the proposal, and of the place where copies of a draft of the Order could be obtained, should be published in the London, Edinburgh, and Dublin Gazettes, as the case might require.

HARBOUR AUTHORITIES' RIGHT OF APPEAL.

Some discussion took place on a proposal by Mr. Pennefather giving the right to dock and harbour undertakings who were outside the scope of the bill to complain to the Railway and Canal Commission if they are placed at an undue disadvantage owing to a direction of the Minister in the case of harbours under his control.

The Home Secretary said that the proposed new clause was far too wide, and could not be accepted.

Sir Donald Maclean said that he thought that harbour authorities should have a right to appeal against undue preference given to competitors.

The Home Secretary said that he thought that the question could be considered on a subsequent clause dealing with rates and facilities.

Mr. Pennefather eventually withdrew his proposal.

A ROADS ADVISORY COMMITTEE.

Mr. Joynson-Hicks moved a new clause, providing for the establishment of a Roads Advisory Committee to consist of ten members—five representatives of highway authorities and five representatives of users of road traffic—with a Chairman and Secretary.

General Sir Ivor Phillips seconded the motion.

Mr. Jack Jones opposed the amendment, because it limited local and public control of the highways.

Sir Eric Geddes said that he thought that roads, and possibly road traffic, should form a separate branch of the Ministry, and consequently it was advisable that there should be a Roads Advisory Committee; but he pointed out that the Committee would have no executive powers, and its appointment would not restrict in any way the powers of the Minister over the roads.

Sir H. Nield said that he thought that the suspicions of Labour members were groundless.

Mr. Spencer said that they could not trust the Government after what had happened. If the Committee was appointed it should be entirely composed of representatives of the publicly-elected highway authorities, and have no representatives of private interests.

On a division, the clause was carried by 247 to 47.

Mr. Joynson-Hicks moved a new clause, to safeguard the rights of traders to appeal to the Railway and Canal Commission in respect of the provision of reasonable facilities, undue preference, or undue disadvantage, or allowances of rebates.

Mr. Sexton seconded the motion.

Mr. Shortt opposed the clause, as being too widely drawn.

The clause was withdrawn.

On Clause 1 Sir William Pearce moved that

SPECIAL EXTRA.

MESSAGES TO THE KING.

The King has received telegrams from President Wilson, President Poincaré, and the King of Italy in reply to his messages of congratulation on the signing of peace.

President Wilson says:—It gives me deep pleasure to express to you my conviction of the truth of your generous message concerning the great ends which have been attained by the present Peace, and the new ties which have been created between your own great people and our. We are on the eve of realising more than we could realise them at the time the real objects of the great war. The free peoples of the world, united to defeat the enemy of liberty and justice, have now, through their representatives wrought out a plan by which they may remain united in the free partnership of intimate council to promote the cause of justice and of freedom. It is within the choice of thoughtful men of every nation to enrich the peace by their counsel. I am happy to echo your greetings at this momentous time of renewed vision and confident hope.

After stating that France will never forget the marvellous efforts accomplished by the valiant British Army and Navy, President Poincaré says:—Your Majesty knows that I am profoundly convinced, as you are, of the necessity of a lasting agreement between Great Britain and France. Henceforward our union will be still closer, and the maintenance of peace, the renewal of productive activities, and the future of civilisation will be more securely guaranteed.

King Emanuel telegraphs:—I foresee that our two peoples, walking in the paths of peace in ever-increasing prosperity, will draw still closer their traditional bonds of sympathy and friendship, which have been cemented on the common fields of battle.

ALIENS RESTRICTION BILL.

The Aliens Restriction Bill, to continue and extend the provisions of the Aliens Restriction Bill, passed on the day after the declaration of war for the period of the war, was considered yesterday by the Standing Committee, under the presidency of Mr. William Nicolson, in Grand Committee in the House of Commons. Mr. Shortt, Home Secretary, and Sir Hamar Greenwood, Parliamentary Secretary to the Home Office, watched the bill for the Government. The proceedings were delayed half an hour owing to the absence of a quorum (twenty members). Several members expressed the opinion that the proceedings need not be officially reported, but Mr. Shortt, on being appealed to, expressed a contrary view, remarking that, having regard to the importance attached to the alien question during the last election, the Government thought the widest possible publicity should be given to the matter, so that there should be no suspicion that they wished to hide anything.

The Committee agreed with this view, and proceeded to discuss various amendments on the Order Paper, several of which were rejected.

Commander Kenworthy proposed to omit from Clause 3 the words "or amongst the civilian population" from the clause dealing with sedition and disaffection, so as to make the offence only punishable where it affected British or Allied Forces.

This proposal was strongly opposed by Mr. Shortt, who said that they were dealing with enemy aliens, and not nationalised or friendly aliens, and they could not be too strenuous. British working men were quite capable of managing their own affairs, and he did not think they would resent the proposal.

Mr. Hayday said that they must be careful to put nothing in the bill to accentuate the present unrest. They had only to look at Ireland to see how the privilege had been abused by agitators getting among the civil population.

Sir John Butcher said that it passed his comprehension why any member should desire to permit a privilege which had been so abused.

Commander Kenworthy said that some people looked upon the bogey of alienism with fear, but a week ago they had Huns on the brain, and now it was Bolshevism.

The Chairman called Commander Kenworthy to order, and said that he must speak to the amendment.

Commander Kenworthy said that there was no need at all to protect the British workingmen against Bolshevism or any other bogey. He could protect himself.

The amendment was rejected.

Clause 3 of the bill was then passed. The remaining clause was only formal in character, but the Committee adjourned until to-day, when they will consider new clauses as to deportation of enemy aliens.

BRITISH AIRSHIP'S ATLANTIC FLIGHT.

Preparations for the departure of Airship R 34 from East Fortune Aerodrome, Haddingtonshire, on a Transatlantic were completed yesterday afternoon. The weather conditions are reported to be excellent. The meteorological forecasts for the week are also most favourable, and it is reported that an anticyclone will be encountered across the main route, which will bring the airship in favourable weather conditions while on her way. At the aerodrome the officers and crew were all in high spirits. Lord Lytton visited the aerodrome during the day, and was accompanied over the grounds by Colonel Hunt, Commander at East Fortune. General Maitland was expected to arrive during the evening.

The Air Ministry last evening issued the following announcement:—Permission has been given by the Air Ministry for H.M. airship R 34 to start during the night on her flight across the Atlantic subject to the present weather conditions remaining unchanged.

AMERICAN NAVAL GREETING.

The Air Ministry announces that the following message has been received from Paris from Admiral Knott, United States Navy:—"Please advise pilot of R 34—Every success on his trans-Atlantic flight."

MANCHESTER COTTON DISPUTE.

The Cotton Spinners' and Manufacturers' Association at a meeting in Manchester yesterday, decided that, if the operatives failed to return to work in accordance with the terms arranged last week, the spinning mills in their district, comprising the whole of North and North-East Lancashire, shall close to-night until further orders.

Yesterday also the Federation of Master Cotton Spinners arranged to meet the United Textile Workers' Federation at Manchester to-day to consider the situation that has arisen through the operative spinners repudiating the bargain which they made last week.

The opinion is freely expressed that the Textile Federation will be bluntly told that unless last week's settlement is honoured a general lock-out will be declared. The employers hold the view that a strong stand on their part is imperative.

IRON AND STEEL DISPUTE.

Twelve thousand iron and steel workers were idle yesterday on the expiration of the notices terminating the South Wales and Monmouthshire iron and steel trade sliding scale agreement. The skilled men asked a £5 per week minimum; the employers offered £3 18s., but required the withdrawal of the workmen's coal privilege. The men declined arbitration because the agreement declared that the wage basis cannot be altered.

UNIONIST WAR COMMITTEE.

Sixty members attended yesterday's meeting of the Unionist War Committee, presided over by Lord Salisbury. It was decided to change the name of the Committee to the Unionist Reconstruction Committee. On the motion of Sir Henry Craik, seconded by the Duke of Northumberland, a resolution was carried protesting against the precedent created by the Coal Commission, by which an inquiry had been made the occasion for strong partisan utterances and for unfounded statements, subject to no test of cross-examination, by certain members of the Commission, and for discussion of disputed questions which could only be properly examined by a court of law. Another resolution urged the early resumption of Cabinet meetings, in order that the collective responsibility of Ministers to Parliament should be restored.

BELFAST AND THE VICTORY LOAN.

THE CHANCELLOR'S APPEAL.

A public meeting was held in the Council Chamber of the City Hall, Belfast, yesterday afternoon, in support of the new Victory Loan. The meeting was called by the Lord Mayor (Councillor J. C. White), who presided. He was supported by the Chairman of the Belfast Chamber of Commerce, Mr. H. L. Garrett, and the Chairman of the War Savings Committee (Sir James Johnston), and there was a large and representative attendance of citizens.

The Lord Mayor said that, while the war had ceased, the struggle was not over yet, for the aftermath of the war had to be met, and, until the job which they as a people had undertaken was completed, they were not permitted to slacken. That meeting was called in order that the citizens might realise the present critical period in their national affairs.

Sir Frederick Moneypenny, M.V.O., the Lord Mayor's private secretary, read a number of letters of apology, which included the following telegram from the Chancellor of the Exchequer: "I have great pleasure in wishing your meeting every success, and greatly regret that pressure of business in the House of Commons prevents me visiting Belfast to urge upon its citizens the merits of the Victory Loan. Peace is now established, and the country is freed from war, but the difficulties of the period of transition are many and great. These can only be overcome by the same spirit of determination and generosity which won the war. The need for financial help now is as great as the need for men once was, and I ask the inhabitants of Belfast and Ireland to respond to this appeal with the same unstinted patriotism as before. By making the Loan a success they will be assuring for the country a sound financial future and a prosperous economic life."

Mr. H. L. Garrett, D.L., President of the Belfast Chamber of Commerce, supported the appeal. He said that they remembered what a magnificent response was made to the War Loan a couple of years ago. Such was Belfast's record during the war that they were, surely, not going to alter it now that victory had been gained, even though they still mistrusted the Government as much as ever they did. (Applause.) They must overlook much of the admittedly gross carelessness and extravagance which undoubtedly occurred over and over again in creating the immense machinery which eventually carried us through to victory that they were now celebrating. (Applause.)

Sir James Johnston, Chairman of the Belfast War Savings Committee, said that the Belfast Corporation on the occasion of the last Loan pledged the funds of the city for a very large amount, but he regretted that owing to their commitments, they were not in a position to repeat that operation. They had, however, done the next best thing. The Corporation had that day adopted the recommendation of the Finance Committee to purchase on liberal terms the issues redeemable in 1921 and 1924, and, if the holders responded to this, it would liberate about £180,000 to be invested in the new Victory Loan. (Applause.)

Mr. J. R. Bristow, J.P., Chairman of the Northern Banking Co., speaking on behalf of the banks, said that they were prepared to lend money to their customers going in for the Funding Loan.

Addresses were also delivered by Mr. J. Milne Barbour, Chairman of the Linen Thread Co.; Mr. W. A. Lindsay, M.P.; and Mr. H. M. Pollock, Chairman of the Belfast Harbour Board.

COMRADES OF THE GREAT WAR.

MEETING AT NEW DUBLIN PREMISES.

General McCalmont presided at a meeting of the Dublin branch of the Comrades of the Great War, held last night at their new premises, 42 York street, Dublin.

The principal speaker was Miss Grace Roe, who said that she spoke as a representative of the women's party, led by Miss Christabel Pankhurst and her mother. She described the work done by women on the "home front" since 1914, and declared that it was through the propaganda work of the women that the threatened man-power strike was averted when the Germans were pressing so hard on the Western front during the last months of the war—a strike which would have been disastrous to the Allies. There were very difficult times ahead, and they wanted to make the Empire a place worthy of the great sacrifices of the men who had died on the field of battle, and they wanted a reconstruction scheme. But they could not have those things if they listened to the Bolshevists. They were fighting for industrial salvation, and they must have capitancy in industry. It was committee control by the workers that brought Russia to destruction. If they were to be run by committees, all industries would come to a stand-still. There was no place where Bolshevism was working harder than here in Ireland. There were Irish Bolshevists, and they had got to realise that what was going on in Ireland was exactly the same as what took place in Russia. They had the Sinn Fein Bolshevist movement, and its strongest lever was Labour. The Irish Transport Workers' Union was the strongest lever that Sinn Fein had got at the present time. She knew that soldiers and women would be very good allies, and would do what they could to uphold the British Constitution. (Applause.)

The Chairman, referring to reports of grievances suffered by the men, said that he would endeavour to have attention called to the matter in the House of Commons. His statement gave general satisfaction.

OBITUARY.

LORD RAYLEIGH, O.M.

The death of Baron Rayleigh, O.M., took place on Monday night at his Essex seat.

A son of the second Baron Rayleigh, he was educated at Cambridge, and was Senior Wrangler and First Smith's Prizeman in 1865.

Lord Rayleigh made a hobby of running a dairy business. He was one of the few recipients of the Order of Merit. He was a winner of the Nobel Prize, a past President of the Royal Society, and Chairman of the Aeronautical Advisory Committee. His attainments and energy earned him international renown. He wrote voluminously on scientific matters, including a valuable work on the "Theory of Sound," and less than three months ago, as President of the Society for Psychical Research, he showed how deeply he had always been interested in that branch of study. Lord Rayleigh was Mr. Balfour's brother-in-law. His great interest in farming has always appealed to the popular imagination. He owned about 7,000 acres in Essex, and as a farmer he certainly put them to good use. He became known as the Peer shopkeeper, when he opened a number of milk-shops in London. There are now 10 of these establishments, to which the milk is brought by special train from his Essex dairies each morning. Two other shops have been opened at Southend. Lord Rayleigh "ran" a co-operative system in connection with his big farming interests, and he was always keenly intent on the welfare of those who served him. In April of last year he presented a pig to each of a hundred married workers on his estates.

SIR JOHN BRUNNER.

The death is announced of Sir John Tomlinson Brunner, Bart., at his residence at Chertsey shortly after midnight on Monday. Sir John only recently returned from France, where he had been for the benefit of his health. Born at Everton, Liverpool, in 1842, he was well known as Chairman of Messrs. Brunner, Mond, and Co. He was a big public benefactor, and endowed three chairs in Liverpool University, of which he was Pro-Chancellor in 1909.

WAGES OF IRISH FARM LABOURERS.

The Agricultural Wages Board have been notified by Mr. Thomas Foran that he will move that the wages of agricultural labourers in Ireland be increased by 10s. over the minimum in order that they may be placed on the same level as the English labourers.

A general lock-out of farm labourers by the Kildare Farmers' Union is announced to take place to-night. There have been several strikes in the Celbridge district. Strikes have also taken place in County Meath, and further stoppages are threatened.

PARLIAMENT.

the new Ministry should be called the Ministry of Transport, instead of the Ministry of Ways and Communications.

Sir Eric Geddes said that he preferred the original title, but he would leave it to the House to decide.

The amendment was defeated by 109 votes to 65.

THE CASE OF THE TRAMWAYS.

On Clause 2, Mr. George Balfour moved to exclude tramways from the operations of the Ministry.

Sir Eric Geddes said that it would be a serious omission to leave out the tramways. It was not intended to take possession of municipal tramways.

The amendment was negatived.

The further consideration of the bill was adjourned.

ENGLISH CHURCH POWERS BILL.

In the House of Lords yesterday, the adjourned debate on the motion for the second reading of the National Assembly of the Church of England Powers Bill, moved by the Archbishop of Canterbury, and on Viscount Haldane's reasoned amendment for the rejection of the bill, was resumed.

The Marquis of Crewe expressed doubt as to the wisdom of the scheme for the creation of a Church Assembly. He did not believe that Parliament would agree to pass, sub silentio, a new constitution for the Established Church. With regard to the proposed Ecclesiastical Committee of the Privy Council to consider measures recommended by the Legislative Committee of the Church Assembly, he questioned whether the creation of such a body was feasible, and he had difficulty in appreciating how it would work. As to the Parliamentary procedure suggested in the bill, he believed that the mere power of veto by Parliament of measures recommended by the Church Assembly would not be found acceptable. He recommended the promoters to consider the possibility of adopting something like the procedure which was embodied in several recent measures, namely, that their proposals should take effect subject to any modifications and adaptations agreed upon by both Houses of Parliament. There was no doubt that the plan of the bill ran sharply counter to the great body of Nonconformist opinion, and was also regarded with grave suspicion by a considerable section of Churchmen. In these circumstances he asked the promoters what chance did they suppose the measure had of becoming law in its present form. Personally he would welcome a reasonable measure for the reform of the Church. He did not believe that the majority of the country desired disestablishment, but what they feared was what was called priestcraft and sacerdotalism. The promoters of the bill would be wise to trim the measure into a shape in which it would be accepted by people who had these fears.

Viscount Finlay said that he recommended the House to give the bill a second reading, broadly speaking, on the grounds which were stated by the Archbishop of Canterbury, though he frankly recognised that it could be improved by amendments in the procedure proposed relating to Parliamentary supervision.

THE BISHOP OF MANCHESTER.

The Bishop of Manchester said that he thought that the promoters of the bill would have great objection to submitting the constitution of the Church Assembly to the opinion of Parliament. They were of opinion that the constitution should have no Parliamentary taint. In his opinion the bill would alter the existing relations between Church and State to the disadvantage of the State. It would change the Church into a voluntary, self-governing, religious corporation, while retaining in it the special privileges it enjoyed as a National Church. The proposed control of Parliament would not affect that position. Such a change was bound to arouse the attention of the other voluntary religious corporations. If the Church of England was to have these privileges, why should not other religious denominations claim them? He opposed the formation within the Church of England of an enfranchised and privileged aristocracy which would dishearten the ordinary layman. (Cheers).

Lord Emmott maintained that the principle of the bill was right and fair. The Church ought not to remain subject to a Legislative Assembly which had neither the time nor inclination to attend to her affairs. Lord Haldane's speech against the bill was one of his ablest Parliamentary performances, but when it was examined in detail it afforded no valid second reading objection to the bill. He believed that the fears that the constitution of the Church would be captured by the High Church party were exaggerated, and would not be borne out in the result. He hoped that the second reading would be carried by a large majority.

The Bishop of Ely, in supporting the bill, said that he believed that Parliament would not allow itself to be hoodwinked by any Church Assembly. He denied that the provisions of the bill camouflaged revolutionary proposals.

The Marquis of Salisbury said that any amendment suggested would be favourably considered. Undermining the authority of the Ministers of the Crown never entered the minds of the promoters. The phrase, "Advise His Majesty," simply meant the proper way of bringing the Council's opinion before the Houses of Parliament. Let Lord Haldane produce better words.

Viscount Haldane—Take my amendment. (Laughter.)

The Earl of Sheffield—The object of the Church should be to overcome apathy and the drifting away of a vast mass of opinion. It was reasonable to ask greater facilities for bringing the Church level with the times, and the door should be opened wide for anyone to help.

Lord Ashbourne supported the bill.

LORD PHILLIMORE.

Lord Phillimore said that there was no desire on the part of the promoters of the bill to smuggle through legislation for the Church of which Parliament disapproved. His only fear was that, in the procedure proposed, there would be too little legislation. If the Church made any proposal which did not meet with the approval of Lord Haldane or the Bishop of Manchester, they could oppose it in the House. So far from the bill being the measure of the High Church Party he, as the official representative of the Sacerdotalists, had the greatest difficulty in persuading them not to oppose the bill, because they considered that it gave too much power to the laity.

Earl Russell opposed the bill on various grounds.

Lord Stuart of Wortley urged that the second reading should be carried, if only as the most effective protest at that stage against the intolerable state of things existing in reference to legislation for the Church. He agreed that the procedure of the bill required amending.

Lord Charnwood objected to the form of declaration in the bill as affecting membership of the Church in a way never contemplated.

On the motion of the Lord Chancellor, the debate was adjourned.

The House adjourned at 10.50.

THE WITTRING COURT HOME CASE.

The Court of Criminal Appeal, London, yesterday upheld the appeal of Harry Hall, Southend, estate agent, against his conviction for manslaughter, and his sentence to three months' hard labour, in connection with the death of a patient named Miss Spurling, at Wittring Court Home, for persons of weak intellect. Originally Hall was charged, with Mrs. Sarah Ann Binstead, who kept the home, but she was found unfit to plead. In the result, the Court set aside the jury's verdict, and Hall was released.

THE CLAIMS OF IRISH PENSIONED TEACHERS.

At a very full meeting of the National Board of Education held yesterday, a deputation consisting of Messrs. J. R. Bradshaw (Cappamore, Co. Limerick), M. Doyle (Ballymote), J. P. O'Connell (Cork), and E. Mansfield (Tipperary), representing the Irish teacher pensioners, placed very fully before the Commissioners the absolute necessity and justice of the claim to have the Irish pensioners placed on the same level as the Scottish pensioners under their new Pension Act of 1919, which gives, in addition to the present miserable pensions, £1 per annum for every year served. The extreme urgency of action, owing to the deplorable plight of most pensioners, who receive on the average less than 16s. per week, was impressed on the Board. A war bonus, hitherto denied the pensioners, was also claimed.

The Commissioners present indicated their strong sympathy with the superannuated teachers, and, through the Resident Commissioner, who presided, promised that every effort would be made to see that the Irish pensioners and Irish teachers generally would be at least as well treated as their brethren in Scotland.

DUBLIN STREET SCENES.

SEQUEL IN THE POLICE COURT.

A sequel to the disturbances that occurred in Dublin on Saturday night was heard in the Northern Police Court yesterday, before Mr. Lupton, when two young men of the labouring class, named Thomas O'Doherty, 44 New street, and Christopher Bolger, 42 Upper Kevin street, were charged by Inspector Barrett and Sergeant Barton with riot at Westmoreland street and College Green on Saturday night by taking part in an assembly of about a thousand people with intent to assault soldiers, and with assaulting on that occasion Lieutenant Norton, R.A.F., Baldonnel Aerodrome; Private Edward Kelly, 2nd Royal Dublin Fusiliers, a patient in the Orthopædic Hospital at Blackrock; and Mary Kirwan, a soldier's wife, who attempted to prevent a military officer from being assaulted.

Private Kelly, in reply to Inspector Barrett, stated that he was in Westmoreland street on Saturday night between 9 and 11 o'clock. While walking along he was attacked, knocked down, and kicked. He was struck with a hurley, and his right eye and lip were cut. He could not identify the prisoners as being present on the occasion. He saw a flying officer also set upon by the crowd and assaulted.

Annie Lawrence, a soldier's wife, residing at 14 Upper Kevin street, stated that on this particular occasion she saw a crowd run towards a military officer. O'Doherty stepped out from the crowd and struck the officer on the face with his hand and knocked him down. When in that position Bolger struck him with a hurley, and the officer's eye was covered with blood. A Dublin Fusilier then came on the scene, and was knocked down by O'Doherty.

In reply to Mr. Lupton, witness admitted that she was put on probation on the 18th ult. for stealing a handcart. She knew the prisoners previously to see, but not to speak to.

Mary Kirwan, another soldier's wife, residing at Golden lane, stated that she saw an officer knocked down by O'Doherty. She lay down on top of the officer to save him, and while in that position she was kicked on the left eye. She saw the other prisoner in the crowd, but did not see him do anything.

Both accused protested that they were not present on the occasion, Bolger denying that he was a Sinn Feiner.

Sergeant Barton gave evidence as to the arrest of the accused. O'Doherty stated: "I admit I am a Volunteer; it is a wrong charge." He found the hurley (produced) in O'Doherty's house. Bolger said: "I never in my life go to these throngs."

Inspector Barrett, after describing the scenes in Westmoreland street on Saturday night, stated that he saw small Union Jacks being burned and soldiers being pursued by groups of people. He appealed to a certain section of the crowd who were obviously Sinn Feiners to be tolerant to those people, who were entitled to sport their favours on Peace Day. He read statements made by accused, who both denied being in Westmoreland street on the occasion.

A remand for a week was applied for and granted, Bolger being allowed bail.

MILITARY TAKE OVER AUSTRALIAN SOLDIERS.

The two Australian soldiers who were arrested in Westmoreland street on Sunday night during the disturbance arising out of the Peace celebrations, were yesterday handed over to the military authorities by the D.M.P. They were removed by soldiers from the College Police Station, where they had been detained since their arrest.

ARMS SEIZED IN DUBLIN.

A number of revolvers, hand grenades, knuckle-dusters, cartridges, and a length of machine gun belting are stated to have been seized by the police yesterday while searching the house, 28 Lower Stephen street, Dublin. They arrested Mr. James Byrne (aged about 27 years), a boot maker, who is described as the occupier of the premises. He is detained in the Bridewell pending instructions from the military authorities.

CHARGE AGAINST SINN FEINERS.

EXCITING SCENES IN THOMASTOWN.

At a Crimes Court at Thomastown, Co. Kilkenny, yesterday, before Mr. Ryan, R.M., Carlow, and Mr. Murray Hornibrook, R.M., Templemore, seven local Sinn Feiners were charged with collecting for Dail Eireann without a permit. The defendants, who were arrested three weeks ago, were conveyed from Waterford in a military motor wagon, which stopped on the road through shortage of petrol. Two police constables were prevented by a crowd from leaving Thomastown with two tins of petrol, and a baton charge took place, in which several were injured, some rather seriously. There was a large force of military and police.

Before the Court commenced, the Chairman directed the building to be cleared, as many of those present refused to remove their hats. In clearing the court the police used their batons, and some men were badly cut about the head. The defendants declined to recognise the Court.

The magistrates convicted them, and ordered their detention until the rising of the Court.

ALLEGED ILLEGAL POSSESSION OF FIREARMS.

At Cork Barracks yesterday evening a district courtmartial, presided over by Major Chapman, assembled for the trial of Michael O'Connell, Main street, Thurles, on the charge of being illegally in possession of firearms and ammunition.

Accused refused to recognise the Court.

Police Sergeant Hurley said that on the 7th June he went to the publichouse of the accused with other police under District Inspector ——

Captain Gover (Prosecutor)—We dont want to bring in poor Mr. Hunt.

Witness swore that he found a revolver of German make concealed under a seat in the snug.

Constable James Fox, one of the search party, swore to finding under a grate in the accused's bedroom a revolver. It was marked "U.S. Army, 1917," and was loaded in its six chambers.

The accused declined to cross-examine, and claimed that he was a soldier of the Irish Republican Army.

The Prosecutor said that he had a statement by the accused, that there was a lot of robbery going on in Thurles, and he had the revolver to protect his property.

Accused now objected to this statement being put in on his behalf, and the Court closed. The findings will be duly announced.

MALICIOUS INJURIES AWARD IN KERRY.

At the Listowel Quarter Sessions, before Judge Dromgoole, K.C., Fleet Surgeon G. S. Danage claimed £32 for the malicious destruction of four double gates on his lands at Tannavalla, Listowel, and £5 for the destruction of two galvanised milk tankards containing 32 gallons of new milk.

His Honour allowed the full damages claimed in respect of the gates, and 35s. for the tankards and milk.

CHARGE OF ILLEGAL ASSEMBLY.

Four young men of the agricultural labouring class, named Healy, Dillon, Roche, and Broderick, were charged at a special Crimes Court at Listowel, before Mr. H. R. Jones, R.M., and Mr. P. J. O'Hara, R.M., with illegal assembly in connection with the distribution of land at Knockalougha, Duagh, and bound to the peace for twelve months.

POLICE RAIDS IN LISTOWEL.

The residences of Mr. James Crowley and Mr. J. J. McKenna, Co.C., in Listowel, have been visited by District Inspector Conor and police. It is stated that nothing of an incriminating nature was found, and that the police did not remain long on either of the premises.

POLICE RAIDS FOR ARMS IN WEXFORD.

A series of raids for arms were recently made by Wexford police, and guns found at the residences of Martin French, Byrne's lane; Thomas Cousins, Rathaspeck, and John Hall, Fairfield, were seized.

SINN FEIN MEMBER'S HOUSE SEARCHED.

GUILD OF INSURANCE OFFICIALS (DUBLIN BRANCH).

A large attendance of the members of the Dublin Branch of the Guild of Insurance Officials was held at Roberts' Café, Suffolk street, on Friday last. The chair was taken by the President, Mr. M. H. Stokes, who gave a most interesting account of his visit, as a delegate, to the Guild Conference held in London at Whitsuntide. In the course of his remarks, Mr. Stokes pointed out that, although the Guild was practically in its infancy, the membership was now over 12,000. They were bound together in a common cause in the hope to secure a brighter future for the employés of insurance companies, and by constitutional methods to see that the directors of the companies recognise the services of the officials as brain-workers in a fair and just manner.

The following resolutions were unanimously adopted:—"That, in the opinion of this meeting, it is desirable that the Council at the earliest possible moment take the necessary steps with a view to the setting up of a Joint Industrial Council for the insurance profession on the lines suggested by the Whitley report." "That this meeting heartily approves the decision of the Conference of the Guild of Insurance Officials to apply for permission to give evidence before the Home Office Committee on the question of workmen's compensation, with a view to safeguarding the interests of the staffs engaged in this class of business, and considers that the question of nationalisation is a most important one."

THE VACANT ARCHBISHOPRIC.

CATHEDRALS AND THE PROVOST.

A meeting of the Joint Chapters of Christ Church and St. Patrick's Cathedrals was held in the Chapter House of Christ Church Cathedral yesterday, after Matins, for the purpose of electing a Guardian of the Spiritualities of the United Dioceses of Dublin and Glendalough during the vacancy in the See. The Very Rev. Harry Vere White, M.A., Dean of Christ Church, was unanimously appointed.

The following resolution was passed:—

The Deans and Chapters of the Cathedrals of the Holy Trinity and of St. Patrick's, sitting together to appoint a Guardian of the Spiritualities of the United Diocese, desire to express their sense of the loss which the diocese has sustained by the acceptance by the Most Reverend J. H. Bernard, D.D., of the Provostship of Trinity College. They recall with gratitude the zeal and wisdom with which he guarded the interests and encouraged the work of St. Patrick's during the nine years in which he was its Dean, and of Christ Church during his tenure of the Metropolitan See, as its Ordinary.

A meeting of the Chapter was held in the Chapter House yesterday at 10.30 a.m., the Very Rev. the Dean in the chair. The following were present:—Rev. Chancellor Hemphill, D.D.; the Archdeacon of Dublin, Canons F. C. Hayes, J. C. Dowse, G. D. Scott, R. N. Somerville, F. W. Mervyn, H. B. Kennedy, S. R. McGee, C. P. Price, J. Pim, and Rev. W. W. Dungan, Secretary.

DUBLIN PRESBYTERY.

CONGRATULATION TO THE PROVOST.

The Presbytery of Dublin met yesterday, Rev. R. K. Hanna (Moderator) presiding. Also present:—Revs. Dr. Osborne, J. L. Morrow, H. P. Glenn, A. Gailey, J. Rogers Boyd, J. J. Macauley, J. S. Crockett, J. H. Black, H. C. Waddell, James Snowdon, McMullen; with Messrs. Gray, Gibson (Adelaide road), McFarland, and Hilton, elders.

The Presbytery adopted a vote of sympathy and condolence with the family of the late Mr. William Hogg, who met his death suddenly in a motor accident at Ballymena. Mr. Hogg was an esteemed elder of Adelaide road congregation.

It was decided to instal Rev. W. H. McCracken in Nenagh. Revs. Hanna, Osborne, Glenn, Humphries, and Black, with Mr. Gray, elder, were appointed a commission to carry out the installation.

It was unanimously resolved:—

That the Presbytery of Dublin offer to His Grace the Archbishop of Dublin their hearty congratulations on his appointment to the Provostship of Trinity College, Dublin, of which he was so distinguished a student.

Rev. James Snowdon reported that 488 pupils presented themselves for the annual examination. The Lower Abbey street and Ormond quay Schools obtained 57 prizes each, and Mountmellick headed the country schools, obtaining nine prizes.

The Presbytery expressed their general approval of the proposal for the establishment in Ireland of a Foreign Missionary Supply Dépôt, and recommended the promoters to approach the Mission Board of the Assembly and the Women's Missionary Association.

Rev. J. L. Morrow reported that the Committee on Students had examined Mr. Neil McNeill on the fourth year course and approved the examination.

THE METHODIST CHURCH.

A meeting of Methodist Army chaplains and of ministers officiating at military stations has just been held in Belfast, under the chairmanship of Rev. J. Dwyer Kelly, Assistant Principal Chaplain (Methodist), Irish Command, and, on the motion of Rev. W. J. Robinson, B.A., C.F., at Curragh Camp, it was resolved to form an Irish Methodist Fellowship of all ministers who were engaged wholly or in part during the past year, a meeting of the Fellowship to be held each year during the meeting of the annual Conference.

It has been decided to hold this coming November the Junior Methodist Ministers' Convention, which has not met since 1915 on account of the war. The coming Convention is to be held in Londonderry, and the officers elected in 1915 are to be the officers.

The annual English Methodist Conference meets this year in Brunswick Chapel, Newcastle-on-Tyne, on 16th July, under the presidency of Rev. Dr. Barber, Principal of the Leys School, Cambridge. In addition to the ten Irish members of the Legal Hundred, the following are the Irish representatives to the Conference:—Revs. James Kirkwood (Coleraine), Vice-President-Elect; J. L. Cosde (Waterford), W. J. Oliver (Roscrea), and Mr. George H. Fulton (Belfast).

TRINITY COLLEGE DIVINITY SCHOOL.

CONCESSION TO EX-ARMY MEN.

It is announced that any man who has served abroad in the years 1914-18 may, on the recommendation of the bishop, present himself at the examination for entrance to the Divinity School, Trinity College, Dublin, at any time after passing the University Matriculation Examination. This is an important concession made to ex-service men who intend to become candidates for ordination in the Church of Ireland.

ASTRONOMICAL NOTES FOR JULY.

(FROM OUR ASTRONOMICAL CORRESPONDENT.)

THE PLANETS.—There is little that the amateur observer can do with his telescope on the planets this month. Mercury is an evening star, but though he sets more than an hour after the sun during the first half of the month, there is little likelihood of his being visible in the strong summer twilight. Venus presents a half-moon phase at the beginning of July, and thereafter a crescent, slowly increasing in size, and diminishing in the proportion of illuminated surface. She should be observed in daylight, as far as the observer's means of finding her enable him to do so. Mars rises from one to two hours before the sun, but is practically unobservable. Jupiter, in conjunction on the 21st, is invisible.

Saturn is still for a short time in the evening sky. He is very close to Venus on the 2nd, close enough for both planets to be seen at once in the field of a telescope if the power used is low. This conjunction is the most interesting planetary event of the month, and ought not to be missed, if the weather is favourable. The brilliancy of Venus will enable her to be located quite early in the evening, and Saturn will be visible in the telescopic field long before the naked eye could reach him.

THE MOON.—
First Quarter on July 5th at 3.17 a.m.
Full Moon on July 13th at 6. 2 a.m.
Last Quarter on July 20th at 11. 3 a.m.
New Moon on July 27th at 5.21 a.m.

The crescent Moon will be close to both Venus and Saturn on the 29th and 30th.

THE STARS.—At midnight on July 1st two of the most brilliant of the constellations are on the meridian. These are Lyra, nearly overhead, and Sagittarius, low down in the South. Lyra is a very small constellation, and owes its brilliancy to one magnificent star, the great white Vega. Sagittarius contains no first magnitude star, but it is a widely extended constellation, and embraces many of the 2nd and 3rd magnitude, and in addition, the most brilliant portion of the Milky Way, a region abounding in star clusters and curious nebulæ. This, and the neighbouring portion of Aquila, are well worth telescopic study a little later in the year, when it comes to the meridian about 10 p.m., and the summer twilight no longer pales the stars.

West of the meridian are Hercules, Ophiuchus, Serpens, Corona, and Boötes. Scorpio may be located low in the S.W. by the red gleam of the great star Antares if the horizon is clear enough. Just east of the meridian are Cygnus (the Northern Cross) and Aquila. The Nova of last year is still visible to a small telescope, or pair of binoculars. It is just below 6th magnitude. In the Eastern sky are Aquarius, Pisces, and the Great Square of Pegasus. Ursa Major is West, and Cassiopeia East of the Pole. The bright star Capella is low down a little East of North.

DUBLIN MILK PRICES.

The question of the milk price for the Dublin Metropolitan Area has been under the consideration of the Department of Agriculture and Technical Instruction for Ireland, acting on behalf of the Ministry of Food. It has been decided that the maximum price fixed in the direction published on the 30th April, 1919—viz., 7d. per quart—shall continue to be operative for the months of July and August. In the meantime the costs of production will be investigated by accountants of the Ministry of Food. Should the investigation show that the trade have made no profit during July and August by selling milk at 7d. per quart, the Department will take this fact into consideration in fixing prices for the subsequent months.

GUARANTEED PRICES FOR CEREALS.

As will be seen by an announcement in our advertising columns, growers of wheat, oats, or barley who have not lodged a claim with the police entitling them to payment under the scheme of guaranteed prices are strongly urged to do so. The period for lodging claims has been extended to July 14.

Salutes in honour of the signing of peace were fired throughout Australasia yesterday. Buildings were beflagged, and the warships in Sydney Harbour were decorated and illuminated.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

DOMINION HOME RULE.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

Sir,—If I might be allowed, I would like to congratulate Mr. Bretherton on his letter. Despite its humour—a rare commodity in Ireland at present—it gets nearer to the realities of the Irish situation than does the pompous document which purports to state the case for an Irish Dominion. The signatories of that document may have had hitherto, as stated, divergent views on the form of government best suited to our character and circumstances, but they bear a suspicious resemblance to an old firm which published a previous manifesto advocating a very different policy of Home Rule. To avoid liquidation, they would appear to have co-opted a few colleagues, and joined forces with Sir Horace Plunkett to exploit his progressive projects. It is a matter of doubt whether the style of their new prospectus will gain it public support, as it recalls many of the characteristic touches of the covering letter of the proceedings of the Irish Convention. But if Ireland is rich in nothing else, it is now rich in leagues, and there is no reason why the political crescendo of these gentlemen should yet have reached its limit. If it might culminate in an Irish Empire League, there might then be, if not for every man a league or two, at least one to suit every taste.—Yours, etc.,

C. O. HEAD, Lieutenant-Colonel.

Birr, July 1st, 1919.

A TRAVELLER'S COMPLAINT.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

Sir,—On Saturday last, without note or warning, the train set down in the June Guide Book to leave Howth at 2.30 p.m. was changed to 2.35, with the result that a passenger by it missed the 3 o'clock train to the North by half a minute, was compelled to wait at Amiens street till 7.30, and, catching the last train of a further connection by nothing short of a miracle, reached her destination at the untimely hour of 11.45, instead of 7 o'clock. It should be added that the changes on the Great Northern Line printed in your paper had been consulted that morning, as well as the Guide Book, and, though two other changes on the Howth Line were noted, this important one was omitted. I make no comment, but allow the facts to speak for themselves.—Yours, etc.,

DUBLIN INDUSTRIAL DEVELOPMENT ASSOCIATION.

AN IRISH PEAT INDUSTRY.

At last night's meeting of the Dublin Industrial Development Association, held at the offices, 12 Molesworth street, Mr. A. Mitchell, President, was in the chair.

It was decided that the election of officers should take place at a special meeting of the new Council to be held on Friday night next.

A letter from a Dublin exporter of Irish goods complaining of undue delay in the despatch of goods consigned to Scotland was read. The contracts held by the firm are liable to be lost owing to the lack of proper transport facilities from the port, only two boats per week now sailing, with the result that goods are held over in many cases for a fortnight. The Secretary was desired to send a copy of the letter to the shipping companies concerned, the Shipping Controller, the Dublin Corporation, the Port and Docks Board, and the Chamber of Commerce, with a view to the taking of joint action in the matter.

A letter was read from Colonel F. T. Warburton pointing out that one of the greatest handicaps to Irish industry is the cost of imported coal. He recorded his firm conviction that the use of cheap peat fuel, manufactured by Continental and Canadian methods, will alone enable Irish industries to thrive. He quoted Sir Richard Sankey's opinion, expressed at an All Ireland Industrial Conference sixteen years ago, that the bogs are the true gold mines of Ireland, and will enable her to compete with England and Scotland in every form of industry. A gentleman wrote from the city claiming to have invented a new and most satisfactory liquid fuel for internal combustion engines, for which a patent has been granted him, and which has been found efficacious and economical by practical tests carried out by high authorities.

Colonel E. A. Johnson, Enniscorthy, wrote that he has achieved most satisfactory results with experiments in the making of fireproof china and breakfast dishes, so much so, that recent specimens must, he says, convince any person of education that an industry is possible. In view of the immense demand for all such goods, the time is singularly opportune for the serious carrying on of a pottery industry on a commercial scale.

THE DUBLIN UNITED TRAMWAYS COMPANY LTD.

At a meeting of the Board of Directors of the Dublin United Tramways Company, Ltd., held on the 1st instant, Captain William Lombard Murphy, R.A.M.C., was appointed a director of the company in succession to his father, the late Mr. William Martin Murphy.

The Right Hon. L. A. Waldron, P.C., was elected Chairman of the Board to fill the vacancy caused by the death of the late Mr. William M. Murphy.

THE LATE MR. W. M. MURPHY.

The following resolution was adopted at a meeting of the Board of Directors of the Dublin United Tramways Company (1896), Ltd., held yesterday:—"That, before proceeding to the business of this, the first meeting of the Board of Directors of the Dublin United Tramways held since the death of the Chairman, the directors desire to place on record their sense of the irreparable loss which the company has sustained by the death of Mr. W. M. Murphy. He was connected with this company since its inception; he was indefatigable in the attention which he paid to its affairs, and the company had the benefit of his fine intellect, business capacity and special knowledge of tramway affairs. His colleagues, who were deeply attached to him as a friend, desire to express their grief at his death, and to convey their sympathy to his family in their common loss."

SUGAR—Spot steady.

COTTON opened steady at 35 to 15 points fall, and broke further on weak cables, liquidation, and favourable official weather reports; then rallied under a general buying movement, led by spot houses and New Orleans; but again broke in the afternoon on a bearish private Texas crop report, smaller exports, bulls unloading, Wall street selling, and bear pressure. The market closed barely steady, 65 to 75 points lower. Spot quiet at 75 points fall. New Orleans is 100 points lower. Receipts—Atlantic, 8,000; Gulf, 11,000. Exports—Britain, 8,000; Continent, 1,000.

NEW ISSUE.

THE TYRE INVESTMENT TRUST, LTD.

The London County, Westminster, and Parr's Bank, on behalf of The Beecham Trust, offer for sale 1,000,000 7 per cent. Cum. Preference Shares in the Tyre Investment Trust. The fact that this offer is made at this time was the subject of representations to the Chancellor of the Exchequer, who, through his Secretary, replied as follows:—"I am desired by the Chancellor of the Exchequer to acknowledge your letter of the 25th instant respecting the issue of £1,000,000 Preference Shares of the Tyre Investment Trust, Limited. The Chancellor quite appreciates the fact that arrangements made prevent your now postponing the issue in question. He notes with satisfaction, however, that your directors are undertaking to subscribe amongst themselves for £1,000,000 Victory Loan, and hopes this public-spirited example will be copied." The Tyre Investment Trust was incorporated in August, 1917, as a holding company. Its assets principally consist of holdings in the Dunlop Rubber Company (Far East), Limited, and Dunlop Tire and Rubber Goods Company, Limited (Canada). The price paid for these assets was approximately £1,365,000, which was provided by the issue at par of 550,000 Preferred Ordinary Shares, and 500,000 Ordinary Shares, and by the creation of mortgages for £900,000 (since reduced to £887,500). The present issue of 1,000,000 7 per cent. Cumulative Preference Shares has been made for the purpose of redeeming these mortgages, and consequently there will be no charge ranking in priority to the present issue of Preference Shares. The sum required to provide the dividend on these shares is £70,000 per annum, which was covered more than five times by the earnings of the two companies on the Trust's holdings last year, which was approximately £354,000. The first balance sheet of the company (covering a period of 18 months) made up to 28th February, 1919, showed a gross revenue of £231,663 0s. 10d. After deducting interest on mortgages, provision for income tax, directors' fees, and general management expenses, and the 10 per cent. dividend upon the Preferred Ordinary Shares, a dividend of 50 per cent. was paid upon the Ordinary Shares. The Preference Shares now offered are a high class industrial investment, and the interest is amply secured. The list of applications will close on or before July 7. (Prospectus, page 7.)

THE GAIETY THEATRE.

It is no exaggeration to say that the performance in the Gaiety Theatre last evening of Verdi's "Rigoletto" by the O'Mara Opera Company was a most successful achievement. This was amply manifested by the hearty plaudits that greeted the efforts of the principal artists, who all sang and acted their parts with a fine conception of the spirit of both the music and words. The piece is permeated throughout with some wonderfully charming numbers, which were characteristically rendered, and afforded the very large audience present unbounded pleasure. The name part was in the capable hands of Mr. Flintoff Moore, who sang with confidence and remarkable fervour, his acting at the same time being marked by that dramatic touch necessary to complete a successful finish. Miss Dorothy Phillips's Gilda was no less delightful, and her effort was wholly in keeping with her already deservedly secured reputation. Her singing was expressive and tasteful. Mr. John Pegg portrayed the Duke with much cleverness and ability, and his splendid voice was heard to the greatest advantage. A word of praise is also due to Mr. John C. Browner for his admirable conception of the part of Sparafucile, and Miss Beatrice Waycott as Madelena was excellent. They were well supported by the other members of the company. The chorus was strong and well balanced, and the work of the orchestra under Mr. R. J. Forbes's conductorship assisted materially in a meritorious production.

To-night—"Maritana."

Lotus

JUST now women's fabric shoes are in such good supply at the shops appointed to sell Lotus and Delta that they are unrationed and will be for a few more weeks.

Most of them are low cut shoes with buckles and with light soles for summer wear, and a few are lace shoes, Derby pattern.

Some are sold at 19/9 a pair, others at 21/-, according to the fabric used for their uppers, and all have the name Delta and the price branded on their soles.

The colours of the uppers are black, brown and fawn; the fabrics are the best and most suitable of all the fabrics obtainable for shoe making; the soles are the same quality—indeed they are identical with the soles used for leather shoes.

It is very difficult if not impossible now-a-days to find as good shoe value as is found in these 19/9 and 21/- Delta.

CRICKET.

M.C.C. v. OXFORD UNIVERSITY.

A capital batting performance was accomplished by the Oxford XI. at Lord's yesterday. Overnight they had scored 103 for two wickets, and, remaining in for another four hours, they increased their score by 261, heading the Club's total by 79. All through their innings the batsmen played with marked caution, but their careful methods were justified by results. Still it was not attractive cricket to watch, the play at times being quite tedious. Bell and Ward put on 59 in 45 minutes, the former being in an hour and 50 minutes for 50, and Ward an hour for 39. The turning point of the play was during the partnership of Holdsworth and Pearse, who were together an hour and 50 minutes, adding 102. Going in fifth wicket down at 187, Holdsworth was seventh out at 337, batting for two and a quarter hours, and hitting 13 fours. Marylebone had five minutes' batting in their second innings before rain put an end to play for the day. Holdsworth and Price have been given their Blues. Score:—

SURREY AND LANCASHIRE DRAW.

Rain and bad light greatly interfered with the progress of the above match at Kennington Oval yesterday, and the result was a draw in favour of Surrey, who had gained a distinct advantage overnight. Upon a pitch softened by an early morning downpour, Surrey added another 64 runs in an hour, a merry partnership between Sandham and Hitch yielding 54 in twenty-eight minutes, and at the end of an innings each Surrey led by 75 runs. Sandham batted two hours and five minutes, hit eight 4's, and did not give a chance in a delightful display. The wicket was wet and easy when Lancashire went in a second time, but, apart from John Tyldesley, the Northerners batted feebly, although the light was very bad, and at the final retirement, at a quarter-past five in the afternoon, five men were out for 89 runs. YORKSHIRE v. KENT.
MATCH DRAWN.

The match at Leeds yesterday was ruined by rain. In the forenoon three-quarters of an hour's play was possible, and that period proved sufficient for Kent to capture the five outstanding Yorks wickets for but ten runs. Being 105 behind, Yorkshire were required to follow on, but could not do so, owing to rain, until after lunch. Then only a quarter of an hour's play was possible, and after a dreary wait of about three hours the match was abandoned. Score:—

Bermingham (17 E) for allowing to be at large and unmuzzled at Church place, Ballybough, two ferocious dogs which bit the complainant in the leg and hand. The sergeant's evidence was that the two bulldogs attacked him and he fell. They pursued him until he succeeded in beating them off. Mr. J. R. LONDON COUNTY WESTMINSTER AND PARR'S BANK, LIMITED, Temple Bar Branch, 217 Strand, London, W.C.2; 21 Lombard street, E.C.3; Branches and Head Office, 41 Lothbury, E.C.2, are authorised, on behalf of THE BEECHAM TRUST, LIMITED, of 218 Strand, London, W.C.2, who have agreed to acquire the same at par from the Company, to RECEIVE APPLICATIONS for the PURCHASE of the ABOVE-MENTIONED

1,000,000 7 PER CENT. CUMULATIVE PREFERENCE SHARES

OF £1 EACH AT PAR, payable as follows:—2s. 6d. per Share on Application, 7s. 6d. per Share on Acceptance, 10s. per Share on 11th August, 1919, or payment may be made in full on Acceptance.

The TYRE INVESTMENT TRUST, LIMITED, was incorporated in August, 1917, as a Holding Company. Its Assets principally consist of holdings in the Dunlop Rubber Company (Far East), Limited, and Dunlop Tyre and Rubber Goods Company, Limited (Canada).

The price paid for the acquisition of these Assets was approximately £1,365,000, which was provided by the proceeds of the issue at par of the 550,000 Preferred Ordinary Shares and 500,000 Ordinary Shares, and by the creation of Mortgages for £900,000 (since reduced to £887,500).

The present issue of 1,000,000 7 per Cent. Cumulative Preference Shares has been made for the purpose of redeeming these Mortgages, and consequently there will be no charge ranking in priority to the present issue of Preference Shares. The sum required to provide the dividend on these shares is £70,000 per annum, which was covered more than five times by the earnings of the two Companies on the Trust's holdings last year.

The first Balance Sheet of the Company (covering a period of 18 months) made up to 28th February, 1919, showed a gross revenue of £231,665 0s. 10d. After deducting Interest on Mortgages, Provision for Income Tax, Directors' Fees, and General Management Expenses, and the 10 per cent. dividend upon the Preferred Ordinary Shares, a dividend of 50 per cent. was paid upon the Ordinary Shares.

Although the sum actually received during this period—viz., 18 months, by way of Dividends, Debenture Interest, etc., amounted to £231,665 0s. 10d., the proportion of the net earnings of the two Companies in respect of the Trust's holdings during the same period approximately amounted to £420,000. The following figures of the combined turnover and profits of the two Companies show their development:—

	Turnover.	Proportion of Profit accruing to the Trust in respect of its holdings
1916	£1,062,393	£169,994
1917	1,392,195	213,973
1918	1,796,604	384,430

The Far East Company was formed in 1909, and from its inception has shown steady and increasing profits.

The Canadian Company was incorporated in 1899, and from the outset its course has been one of steady and continued progress.

The net financial position of the Company, after allowing for the cash to be received from this issue, and providing for deduction of preliminary expenses, Income Tax, Directors' Fees, etc., and repayment of mortgages, will approximately be as follows:—

	£	s.	d.
Holdings in the Dunlop Far East and Canadian Companies, at cost	1,364,525	0	0
Cash on deposit or call	242,690	0	0

Although the Dunlop Far East and Canadian Companies are in no way controlled by The Dunlop Rubber Company, Limited (England), arrangements exist between the English Company and these two Companies whereby each has the benefit of all patents, formulæ, etc., owned by the other. The great advantages accruing to the Far East and Canadian Companies from these arrangements with such a vast and prosperous concern as the English Dunlop Company will be readily appreciated.

The Beecham Trust, Limited, will be paid by the Company a commission of 7½ per cent. on the nominal value of the shares acquired, out of which the whole of the expenses in connection with this offer, including an underwriting commission of sixpence per share and an overriding commission of 1½d. per share will be paid by The Beecham Trust, Limited.

The Beecham Trust, Limited, will pay a brokerage of 3d. per share in respect of acceptances of applications (other than those made by or on behalf of underwriters or sub-underwriters) bearing Brokers' or Bankers' stamps.

It is intended to apply for an official quotation of the shares on the London and Provincial Stock Exchanges.

Applications for purchase must be made on the accompanying form and forwarded, with the deposit of 2s. 6d. per share, to the Bankers.

If any application be accepted for less than the full number of shares applied for, the surplus amount paid on application will be appropriated towards the amount payable on acceptance, and where any application is not accepted, the deposit will be returned in full. Failure to pay any instalment will render the amount previously paid liable to forfeiture, and will also give The Beecham Trust, Limited, the right to resell their shares in respect of which the default shall have been made. Interest at the rate of 10 per cent. per annum will be charged on instalments in arrear.

The Beecham Trust, Limited, will procure that after acceptance and payment of the amount due thereon the shares shall be allotted direct by the Company to applicants whose names will thereupon be entered in the Company's Register of Members as holders of the shares 10s. paid. The final instalment of 10s. per share will be payable direct to the Company.

Certificates for Shares will be delivered in due course by the Company in exchange for Allotment Letters with receipt showing payment in full.

The following further particulars are given to comply with the relevant provisions of section 81 of the Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908.

There has been no offer of shares by the Company for subscription by the public. The whole of the said 550,000 Preferred Ordinary and 500,000 Ordinary shares were allotted shortly after the incorporation of the Company for cash and are fully paid up. The amount paid to The Beecham Trust, Limited, was £450,000 in cash as the consideration for the sale to the Company of the Common Stock of the nominal amount of $700,000 (less the minimum required for Director's qualification) in The Dunlop Tyre and Rubber Goods Co., Ltd. (Canada). The Beecham Trust, Limited, also subscribed for in cash at par the whole of the said 550,000 Preferred Ordinary shares of £1 each and the said 500,000 Ordinary shares of 2s. each.

The following are the dates of and parties to material contracts entered into by the Company within two years before the date of this offer, viz.:—

31st August, 1917. Agreement between The Beecham Trust, Limited, and the Company.
8th September, 1917. Agreement between Harry Greer and the Company.
14th December, 1917. Agreement between the Company and The Dunlop Rubber Company, Limited.
2nd May, 1918. Agreement between the Company and James White.
21st June, 1919. Agreement between The Beecham Trust, Limited, and the Company.

The Auditors of the Company are Messrs. Sewell Hutchinson and Co., Chartered Accountants, 4 Broad street place, London, E.C. 2.

The voting rights of the Preferred Ordinary and Ordinary shares respectively are defined in Article 72 of the Company's regulations, where will also be found the voting rights of the 7 per cent. Cumulative Preference shares now offered for sale.

Copies of the Memorandum and Articles of Association of The Tyre Investment Trust, Limited, of the Resolution creating the 7 per cent. Cumulative Preference Shares, and of the Agreement between The Beecham Trust, Limited, and the Company, and other contracts above referred to can be inspected at the offices of their Solicitors, Messrs. Swann, Hardman and Co., Hastings House, 10 Norfolk street, Strand, W.C. 2, during business hours on the days on which the list is open.

LONDON COUNTY WESTMINSTER AND PARR'S BANK, LIMITED, Temple Bar Branch, 217 Strand, London, W.C.2; 21 Lombard street, E.C.3; Branches and Head Office, 41 Lothbury, E.C.2, are authorised, on behalf of THE BEECHAM TRUST, LIMITED, of 218 Strand, London, W.C.2, who have agreed to acquire the same at par from the Company, to RECEIVE APPLICATIONS for the PURCHASE of the ABOVE-MENTIONED

of £1 EACH AT PAR, payable as follows:—2s. 6d. per Share on Application, 7s. 6d. per Share on Acceptance, 10s. per Share on 11th August, 1919, or payment may be made in full on Acceptance.

The TYRE INVESTMENT TRUST, LIMITED, was incorporated in August, 1917, as a holding Company. Its Assets principally consist of holdings in the Dunlop Rubber Company (Far East), Limited, and Dunlop Tyre and Rubber Goods Company, Limited (Canada).

The price paid for the acquisition of these Assets was approximately £1,365,000, which was provided by the proceeds of the issue at par of the 550,000 Preferred Ordinary Shares and 500,000 Ordinary Shares, and by the creation of Mortgages for £900,000 (since reduced to £887,500).

The present issue of 1,000,000 7 per Cent. Cumulative Preference Shares has been made for the purpose of redeeming these Mortgages, and consequently there will be no charge ranking in priority to the present issue of Preference Shares. The sum required to provide the dividend on these shares is £70,000 per annum, which was covered more than five times by the earnings of the two Companies on the Trust's holdings last year.

The first Balance Sheet of the Company (covering a period of 18 months) made up to 28th February, 1919, showed a gross revenue of £251,663 0s. 10d. After deducting Interest on Mortgages, Provision for Income Tax, Directors' Fees, and General Management Expenses, and the 10 per cent. dividend upon the Preferred Ordinary Shares, a dividend of 50 per cent. was paid upon the Ordinary Shares.

Although the sum actually received during this period—viz., 18 months, by way of Dividends, Debenture Interest, etc., amounted to £251,663 0s. 10d., the proportion of the net earnings of the two Companies in respect of the Trust's holdings during the same period approximately amounted to £430,000. The following figures of the combined turnover and profits of the two Companies show their development:—

	Turnover.	Proportion of Profit accruing to the Trust in respect of its holdings.
1916	£1,052,393	£169,994
1917	1,392,195	213,973
1918	1,796,604	364,430

The Far East Company was formed in 1909, and from its inception has shown steady and increasing profits.

The Canadian Company was incorporated in 1899, and from the outset its course has been one of steady and continued progress.

The net financial position of the Company, after allowing for the cash to be received from this issue, and providing for deduction of preliminary expenses, Income Tax, Directors' Fees, etc., and repayment of mortgages, will approximately be as follows:—

Holdings in the Dunlop Far East and Canadian Companies, at cost	£1,364,525	0	0
Cash on deposit or call	242,690	0	0

Although the Dunlop Far East and Canadian Companies are in no way controlled by The Dunlop Rubber Company, Limited (England), arrangements exist between the English Company and these two Companies whereby each has the benefit of all patents, formulae, etc., owned by the other. The great advantages accruing to the Far East and Canadian Companies from these arrangements with such a vast and prosperous concern as the English Dunlop Company, will be readily appreciated.

The Beecham Trust, Limited, will be paid by the Company a commission of 7½ per cent. on the nominal value of the shares acquired, out of which the whole of the expenses in connection with this offer, including an underwriting commission of sixpence per share and an overriding commission of 1½d. per share will be paid by The Beecham Trust, Limited.

The Beecham Trust, Limited, will pay a brokerage of 3d. per share in respect of acceptances of applications (other than those made by or on behalf of underwriters or sub-underwriters) bearing Brokers' or Bankers' stamps.

It is intended to apply for an official quotation of the shares on the London and Provincial Stock Exchanges.

Applications for purchase must be made on the accompanying form and forwarded, with the deposit of 2s. 6d. per share, to the Bankers.

If any application be accepted for less than the full number of shares applied for, the surplus amount paid on application will be appropriated towards the amount payable on acceptance, and where any application is not accepted, the deposit will be returned in full. Failure to pay any instalment will render the amount previously paid liable to forfeiture, and will also give The Beecham Trust, Limited, the right to resell their shares in respect of which the default shall have been made. Interest at the rate of 10 per cent. per annum will be charged on instalments in arrear.

The Beecham Trust, Limited, will procure that after acceptance and payment of the amount due thereon the shares shall be allotted direct by the Company to applicants whose names will thereupon be entered in the Company's Register of Members as holders of the shares 10s. paid. The final instalment of 10s. per share will be payable direct to the Company.

Certificates for shares will be delivered in due course by the Company in exchange for Allotment letters with receipt showing payment in full.

The following further particulars are given to comply with the relevant provisions of section 81 of the Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908.

There has been no offer of shares by the Company for subscription by the public. The whole of the said 550,000 Preferred Ordinary and 500,000 Ordinary shares were allotted shortly after the incorporation of the Company for cash and are fully paid up. The amount paid to The Beecham Trust, Limited, was £450,000 in cash as the consideration for the sale to the Company of the Common Stock of the nominal amount of $700,000 (less the minimum required for Director's qualification) in The Dunlop Tyre and Rubber Goods Co., Ltd. (Canada). The Beecham Trust, Limited, also subscribed for in cash at par the whole of the said 550,000 Preferred Ordinary shares of £1 each and the said 500,000 Ordinary shares of 2s. each.

The following are the dates of and parties to material contracts entered into by the Company within two years before the date of this offer, viz.:—

31st August, 1917. Agreement between The Beecham Trust, Limited, and the Company.

FINANCIAL PARAGRAPHS.

A General Court of Proprietors of Bank of Ireland Stock will be held at the Bank on Friday, 25th inst., at one o'clock, to receive the report from the Court for the half-year ended 30th ulto., and to declare a dividend.

As the banks were closed to the public to facilitate the work of half-yearly balancing, the Stock Exchange was also closed yesterday. We shall, therefore, have to wait until to-day to see the effect on markets of the important intimation that the Government mind has not gone so far in the direction of nationalisation as some had thought. The concessions in the Transport Bill, and Mr. Bonar Law's statement that he himself would regard nationalisation as a great evil, bring reassurances to a good many people who were feeling very anxious about Government policy with regard to the control of industry generally, and the railways and coal mines in particular.

Over £30,000,000 in interest payments and bonds repayable fell due yesterday. Owing, however, to the closing of the banks, the warrants cannot be paid in or cashed until to-day.

So long as National War Bonds were on tap, no steps were taken to obtain an official quotation for them in the Stock Exchange. Business in them was only recorded in the "supplementary list." Now, however, an official quotation has been granted by the Committee, and when the Stock Exchange reopens to-day quotations for no less than thirty different kinds of War Bonds will make their appearance in the Daily Official List.

The directors of the Sun Insurance Office have appointed Mr. Harry Roy Hobson, D.S.O., Assistant Secretary of the office. Mr. H. S. Whiting already holds a similar position. Mr. Hobson was in the Army in Macedonia for nearly four years, and rose to the rank of Lieutenant-Colonel. Before joining the Forces, he was inspector of branches of the "Sun."

The Bank of Montreal have received the following cable from their head office, Montreal:—"Crop situation Manitoba, North Saskatchewan, and Northern Alberta generally satisfactory, notably Manitoba. Southern Alberta and Southern Saskatchewan generally rather less satisfactory."

Messrs. Brunner, Mond, and Co. authorise the Financial News Northwich Correspondent to contradict the rumour referred to in the financial notes of some of Monday's papers, that the great chemical firm contemplates the purchase of Messrs. Van Den Berghs, Ltd., margarine and soap manufacturers, etc. Such a possibility, as has been stated in certain quarters, explains the persistent buying of the Van Den Bergh Shares. The name of Lever Bros. has also been used in the same connection.

The transfer books of the Midland Great Western Railway's Preferential and Consolidated (Ordinary) stock will be closed from Thursday, 17th July, to Thursday, 7th August, both days inclusive.

TEDCASTLE, M'CORMICK AND COMPANY.

A general meeting of the shareholders of this company was held yesterday at the company's offices, Dublin, Mr. Charles H. Bingham presiding.

The Secretary submitted the report of the directors, from which it appeared that, after making various provisions, placing £13,000 to reserve account, and writing off £3,000 for investment account, there was a balance to credit of profit and loss account of £14,306 11/1, which, with the balance brought forward from last account, totalled £18,265 11/11. From this amount £4,550 was deducted as interim dividend on Preference shares at 5 per cent., and on Ordinary Shares at 8 per cent. per annum (less income tax) for the half-year ended 30th September, 1918. The balance, £13,715 11/11, it was decided should be allocated in payment of the following dividends for the half-year ended 31st March, 1919, viz.:—Preference Shares at 5 per cent. per annum, £1,750; Ordinary Shares at 8 per cent. per annum, £2,800. The balance carried forward to next account was £9,165 11/11.

The report also stated that the regular services of the company had been efficiently carried on during the year, and the two steamers that had been engaged on Government service had been released, and were again employed on the company's trade.

The Chairman, in moving the adoption of the report and statement of accounts, said that the company was in a very strong financial position, but in view of the difficulties that might be encountered by ship-owners, now that the war was over, during the transition stages, the Board did not think it advisable to increase the dividend beyond the amounts set out in the report.

The report was adopted.

The following were elected directors to fill vacancies:—Sir Jos. Savory, Sir A. H. Read, and Mr. George Davin.

The Chairman was unanimously re-elected a director of the company, and Messrs. W. Ward, Platt, and Co. were appointed auditors for the ensuing year.

LAW REPORTS.

SILVERMINES MURDER TRIAL.

CROWN CASE CONTINUED.

The Lord Chief Justice and a special jury of the County of Dublin yesterday continued at the Four Courts the trial of John and William O'Brien, brothers, on the charge of having murdered George Sheehan, aged 71 years, at his home at Silvermines, County Tipperary, on January 2nd, 1918.

Counsel for the Crown—The Solicitor-General (Mr. Henry, M.P.), Mr. Serjeant Sullivan, Mr. R. M. Hennessy, K.C., and Mr. Cecil Fforde (instructed by Mr. M. Gleeson, Crown Solicitor).

Counsel for the prisoners—Mr. Healy, K.C.; Mr. Lynch, K.C., and Mr. Joseph O'Connor (instructed by Mr. E. J. Duggan).

Miss Anne Corbett, in answer to the Solicitor-General, stated that she was in Sheehan's house on the night of the murder, about 9 o'clock. She found a silver watch and piece of chain attached to it, in Sheehan's room, and she handed it to the boy Hickie, who was examined on the previous day. She could not identify the watch now.

In reply to Mr. Lynch, the witness said that it was the custom of the "wren boys" in that neighbourhood to wear masks, as they went from house to house. She saw a party of these boys going about on January 2nd, and although she did not know them she gave them a penny.

Sergeant Daughton, R.I.C., in answer to Serjeant Sullivan, stated that he had been stationed at Killoy, in the neighbourhood of Silvermines, for the past four years, and had known the father of the accused, who was an R.I.C. pensioner. He was also sub-postmaster at Silvermines. Witness was on good terms with him, and knew the members of his family well. When the pensioner was alive he wore a watch with a silver curb chain. There was a reddish seal within a circular ring attached to it. He believed the chain produced to be the chain worn by the prisoners' father. The pendant now produced he believed to be that which old John O'Brien, who died in March, 1917, had worn.

In reply to Serjeant Sullivan, the witness said that the prisoner, John O'Brien, had been a student at De La Salle College, Waterford, and that he afterwards became teacher of a school three miles distant from Silvermines, and that he used to walk to and from the school every day. He (witness) saw the prisoner, John O'Brien, wearing the chain and pendant, which he believed to have been worn by his father. Witness told how he picked up a number of small articles, including a cap and a watch, in Sheehan's room on the night of January 2nd, after the shooting. He believed the cap to be one that had been worn by John O'Brien. He picked up a scrap of a shirt front, a pendant seal, the burner and hood of a bicycle lamp in the bedroom. Next day on a stone at a stile nearly opposite Sheehan's house he noticed marks of blood, as if a person getting over the stile had placed his hand on the stone. He went along a path through the field into which the stile led, and on the breast of an earthen fence he saw the impression of five fingers. There also he noticed the impression of a boot, the heel not being deep. Continuing along the path, he noticed faint tracks, but he found one that was clear, a long shallow one. The heels did not make any deeper depression than the sole, and across the centre of the sole there was the mark as of a patch. On January 4th witness, accompanied by the County Inspector and other officers, went to the house of the O'Briens at Silvermines, and he noticed that John O'Brien was wearing a watch and chain which were not those that he usually wore. He also wore a different cap. District Inspector Wilson asked him to take off his boots, and having got possession of them, they proceeded to the place where witness on the previous day saw the impression of a boot on the ground. One of the boots fitted exactly into the impression which he had already described. On January 5th District Inspector Lenthall met the prisoner William O'Brien, as he was working on the road. In reply to a question from the District Inspector O'Brien said that he was in the house of Thomas Kennedy in Silvermines on the night of January 2nd, and that he went to lock up the village hall, of which he had the key. O'Brien also said that he was then wearing the same clothes as he wore on January 2nd. The District Inspector examined the clothes, and on turning up the wrist of one of the sleeves of his coat he noticed that a piece of the cloth was missing. The piece of cloth found at Sheehan's house corresponded with and fitted the vacancy in the sleeve. At O'Brien's house, on the following day, they took possession of another coat, from which two pieces were missing. The mask that was found in the house was of the same cloth as the coat.

Cross-examined by Mr. Healy the witness said that he did not remember having sworn at the previous trials to the particular date on which he saw John O'Brien wearing his father's watch, nor did he remember the date on which a reward of £100 was offered for information as to the murder. The coat of William O'Brien, or the piece of lining, had not been submitted to Professor McWeeney for analysis. O'Brien made a dying declaration from the old man Sheehan. He made a statement, but witness did not think it necessary to take it down in writing. Witness knew on the Wednesday that the cap belonged to John O'Brien, and that the watch and chain was that which O'Brien's father had worn, but he did not go to the house of the O'Briens because it was not for him to move in the matter; it was in the hands of his superior officers.

Mr. Healy produced a memoriam card showing the date of the death of prisoners' father to be 25th April, 1913, and not April, 1917, as the witness had stated.

Asked as to which of the three proofs of guilt he attached most importance to—the footprints, the piece of cloth, or the "wren" mask—the witness said that both the watch and the footprint were important. His evidence about the footprint was about the same as he had given in Cork. He did not swear at the Cork trial that the district inspector had put the boot into the imprint existing in the soil.

You know that the path in question is the common ground of the people of Boherboy and Silvermines travelling over it? I do not. It is not a well-defined track, and I do not see many people using it. The finger print of blood on the stone was sent to an expert in finger marks in the R.I.C. Dublin, but that expert had not been examined at either of the previous trials. The morning of the 4th January was the first time that either of the prisoners was arrested. He brought the officers to the house of the prisoners to examine them for bruises, scratches, or any marks of a struggle. They did not find a scratch on either of them.

A question arose as to whether a coat of one of the prisoners had been submitted to Professor McWeeney for analysis of stains upon it.

Surgeon Mcardle was called, and he stated, in reply to the Solicitor-General, that Professor McWeeney was seriously ill, and was, on medical advice, sojourning in Wales.

District Inspector Lenthall, in his evidence, stated that when he questioned John O'Brien on January 4th he replied that he would say nothing, that he knew he was a marked man, that he was innocent, and that he would not say anything that might implicate others. A cap boots, vest, and trousers belonging to the O'Brien boys were sent to Professor McWeeney, and the professor's report was that on neither of these articles could he detect any trace of blood.

District Inspector Wilson, R.I.C., gave evidence corroborative of that of the preceding witnesses, so far as he was concerned with the investigation, in which he assisted.

Sergeant Bray, R.I.C., stated that when he arrived at Sheehan's house on the night of the 2nd January the kitchen was lighted by a candle.

Mr. Healy—We have not heard about pieces of the lamp being picked up.

Witness added, in reply to Mr. Healy, that he had been promoted sergeant about five months ago.

Constable Crean also gave corroborative evidence.

District Inspector Lenthall, re-called, produced the clothes worn by George Sheehan, and said that there was extraordinarily little blood on them.

Dr. H. V. McKehoe, Nenagh, gave evidence as to the deceased man's injuries. On January 3rd he told the county inspector that the old man had no chance of recovering.

Serjeant Sullivan said that a dying declaration could not be taken because the old man would not believe that he was dying.

The Court adjourned at 5 o'clock till 10.30 this morning, and the jury were again taken to a hotel for the night.

SALE OF LIQUID EGGS.—At Nisi Prius yesterday, before Mr. Justice Dodd and a city special jury, the hearing was commenced of the action of Max Minden and Co., Ltd., v. Edwin Frith and Co. The plaintiffs are egg importers, carrying on business in Hull, and they brought the action against G. Charles Edwin Frith Good and Wm. David Frith Good, trading as G. C. Edwin Frith and Co., wholesale merchants, of Chatham street, Dublin, to recover £554, alleged to be due for 10 barrels of liquid eggs, sold and delivered to the defendants. The defence was that the sale of the goods in question was subject to a condition that they were genuine whole liquid hen eggs, whereas they were, as alleged, merely substitutes for such eggs. The defendants further stated that they were at the time of the sale, and still are, manufacturers of food specialities, including Christmas puddings, and that they required the eggs in question for use by them in the manufacture of their food specialities, including Christmas puddings. They made known to the plaintiffs the purpose for which the goods were required, but the eggs supplied were not reasonably fit for such purpose and were useless to the defendants for any purpose. On an examination by the defendants of the goods they discovered, as alleged, that they were unfit for human consumption, whereupon the defendants repudiated the contract of sale, and requested the plaintiffs to accept re-delivery of the goods, but the plaintiffs refused to do so. Defendants further pleaded that the plaintiffs sold the goods in question, by warranting that they were genuine whole liquid hen eggs, whereas they were in a state of fermentation, which rendered them unfit for use as human food, and absolutely worthless. Defendants said they contracted in the month of August, 1918, with the plaintiffs for the sale and delivery by them of genuine whole liquid hen eggs at the price of 1s. 8d. per lb., to be delivered from time to time up to one month before Christmas Day of 1918, to be used in the manufacture of Christmas puddings, for the supply of which the defendants had entered into numerous contracts with several army and navy contractors and other customers of the defendants. The plaintiffs delivered to the defendants 40 casks or barrels of goods in pursuance of the contract, including the ten casks or barrels in respect of which the plaintiffs' claim in this action was made, and the defendants paid to the plaintiffs several sums of money, amounting in all to £1,111. The defendants supplied the Christmas puddings to the army and navy contractors, but all the puddings were rejected, and were returned to the defendants as unfit for human consumption, and had to be destroyed as worthless. Defendants alleged that by reason of this they lost £1,111 paid by them to the plaintiffs, and they also lost the value of the puddings and the custom of the contractors and other customers. The defendants counter-claimed £5,000 damages. The plaintiffs denied the contract or that the defendants informed them that the eggs were for the purpose stated. They also denied the alleged warranty, and pleaded that the eggs were sold under a well known trade name. They forwarded eight tons of liquid eggs in good condition, and in every respect in accordance with the contract, and they were received and accepted by the defendants, who made no complaint within the time limited by the invoices of such consignments. Mr. Hanna, K.C., Mr. Dickie, K.C., and Mr. Wm. Beattie (instructed by Mr. S. G. Rutherford) appeared for the plaintiffs. Mr. Leonard, K.C., Mr. Swayne, K.C., and Mr. McCutcheon (instructed by Messrs. Gittan and Lambert) appeared for the defendants. Mr. James Henry (instructed by Mr. S. G. Rutherford) held a watching brief for the Egg Products Co., Ltd., formerly the Far Eastern Products Co., Ltd. The case is at hearing.

ACTION AGAINST THE MARCHIONESS OF HEADFORT.—In the King's Bench Division yesterday, in the case of Hoey v. the Marchioness of Headfort, which was in the list for hearing before Mr. Justice Dodd and a city special jury, a settlement was arrived at by consent. The plaintiff, Miss Kathleen Hoey, a minor, suing by her father, Moses Hoey, a merchant, residing at Carrickmacross, Co. Monaghan, brought the action to recover damages for personal injuries caused by the alleged negligence of the defendant, who resides at Headfort House, Kells, Co. Meath, and of Colonel Francis Vernon Willey, Wool Controller for Great Britain and Ireland, of Bath Club, Dover street, London (who was named as a defendant), their agents or servants, in the driving of a motor car, whereby it collided with a car the property of Mr. Hoey, at Kilberry Cross, near Navan, and Miss Hoey was injured. The defence was a denial of negligence, and a plea of contributory negligence. The settlement provided that judgment should be entered for £300 and costs for the plaintiff. Mr. Justice Dodd received the consent and made it a rule of Court. He directed that £50 be paid out to the plaintiff's father to meet the medical expenses, and that the balance be invested for the plaintiff until she has reached the age of 21 years. Mr. Healy, K.C.; Mr. Hanna, K.C., and Mr. Dockrell (instructed by Messrs. Murphy and Mooney), appeared for the plaintiff; Serjeant Sullivan, Mr. Wylie, K.C., and Mr. H. Kennedy (instructed by Mr. A. Steen), appeared for Colonel Willey; and Mr. E. S. Murphy, K.C., and Mr. H. Kennedy (instructed by Mr. Steen) appeared for the Marchioness of Headfort.

DUBLIN PHOTOGRAPHERS' COPYRIGHT.—In the Chancery Division yesterday, Mr. Justice Powell delivered judgment in favour of the plaintiffs, Keogh Brothers, photographers, Lower Dorset street, Dublin, who sought an injunction against Moses Leventhal, publisher, Donore terrace, South Circular road, Dublin, to restrain him and his agents from making, selling, or publishing any copies or imitations of the plaintiffs' cabinet photograph of the late Michael O'Hanrahan, Thomas Clarke, and Con. Colbert (who were prominently identified with the 1916 rebellion), or otherwise infringing the plaintiffs' copyright in the photographs. The plaintiffs also asked for an account and the delivery up of all paintings, copies, and imitations of the photographs, together with all blocks, plates, and other devices used, or intended to be used, for the production of such infringing copies, in the possession, custody, or control of the defendant, his servants and agents. They further claimed damages. The defendant denied that he had infringed the plaintiffs' copyright, and stated that he was not at any time aware that the plaintiffs were entitled to copyright in the photographs, and that the picture postcard group entitled "Easter, 1916," which, it was alleged, included likenesses of the persons mentioned, was an original work supplied by a local artist. The Justice Powell said that he declined to accept the defendant's statement that the likenesses reproduced in the picture postcard and photogravure were original works, and that he was satisfied that they had been reproduced from the plaintiffs' cabinet photograph. He did not believe that the defendant was not aware that the plaintiffs had a copyright in the cabinet photograph. He accordingly granted the injunction, and ordered the defendant to deliver up to the plaintiffs all paintings, copies, and imitations of the photograph, together with blocks, etc., that might be used for the production of the infringing copies. He did not think it necessary to declare the plaintiffs entitled to an account. He allowed the plaintiffs £1 damages, and directed that the defendant should pay the costs. Mr. Conner, K.C., Mr. McCann, K.C., and Mr. Leet (instructed by Messrs. Cochrane and Co.) appeared for the plaintiffs. Mr. S. L. Brown, K.C., and Mr. Reardon (instructed by Mr. M. J. Bowers) appeared for the defendant.

SALE OF BELFAST PUBLIC-HOUSE.—In the Chancery Division, before Mr. Justice Ross, the case of James Lynch v. Mary Gormly, which had reference to the sale of a public-house in Belfast, was heard. It was an action to compel specific performance of an agreement for a sale dated February 6th, 1919, by which the defendant contracted to sell to the plaintiff a public-house situate in Lagonsel road, Belfast, for the sum of £1,060, the sale to be completed on or before the 19th March. The public-house, it appeared, had been let to a tenant named Cosgrave, and the defendant had offered the premises for sale to him, but he declined. Cosgrave, at the same time, stated that he would facilitate the sale to a third party. After the sale—it then appearing that the purchaser was Mr. Lynch, who had formerly been an assistant with Cosgrave—some difficulty was experienced in obtaining possession. Three months' notice to quit had been served on Cosgrave, and that notice expired on the 30th ult. He was now ready and willing to surrender possession of the premises. Mr. Justice Ross suggested that a sum for damages should be agreed to. It was agreed that a decree for specific performance should be given, that possession be given at once, and that the plaintiff should receive £75 damages, and the costs of the action. Mr. S. L. Brown, K.C., Mr. Andrews, K.C., and Mr. Tobias (instructed by Messrs. Wheeler and McCutcheon) appeared for the plaintiff; Mr. Carrigan, K.C., Mr. McGonigal, K.C., and Mr. McKean (instructed by Messrs. E. and L. Kennedy) were for the defendant.

CLARE LADY'S WILL.—The hearing of the probate suit, Sherwin v. Elvard (Francis Behan intervening) came to a conclusion yesterday before Mr. Justice Kenny, by a disagreement of the jury. It was the fourth day on which it occupied the Court. The action was instituted by the Rev. Jas. F. Sherwin, as executor, to prove the will, dated April 30th, 1917, of Mrs. Annie Renwick, who died at 56 Harcourt street, Dublin, on the following day. Mr. Behan, a relative of the testator, who resides in the County Clare, opposed the will, and propounded one that was dated March 2nd, 1917, under which he would receive £200. A settlement was made with Mrs. Elvard, the defendant. Mr. Lynch, K.C.; Mr. Carrigan, K.C., and Mr. Finlay (instructed by Mr. D. Purcell) appeared for the plaintiff; Mr. McElligott, K.C., Mr. M. Comyn, K.C., and Mr. J. Comyn (instructed by Mr. E. Counihan) appeared for the intervenient.

COUNTY FERMANAGH SLANDER.—A verdict for the plaintiff, with £50 damages, was found by a city common jury, which tried an action by Charles Sevenoaks, assistant teller to Colonel Richardson, of Ballinamallard, Fermanagh, against Andrew Latimer, postmaster, Ballinamallard, for alleged slander. The words complained of related to a postal order for 18s., which defendant said he saw the plaintiff signing. Plaintiff denied that he had signed the order. Mr. Serjeant Sullivan and Mr. R. W. Pringle (instructed by Messrs. Falls and Pringle) appeared for plaintiff; Mr. Wylie, K.C., Mr. Babington, K.C., and Mr. Begley (instructed by Messrs. Clarke and Gordon) for the defendant.

ESTATE DUTY APPEAL.—In the Court of the Reference Committee before Mr. J. Lopdell, C.E., an appeal in the matter of the estate of Mrs. Margaret H. Kinahan, situate at Annagh, Co. Tipperary, was heard. The ground of the appeal was that the valuation placed on the land was excessive, and that the price suggested for the redemption value of £461 10/9 was too low. Mr. E. Phelps instructed by Messrs. Beauchamp and Orr stated on behalf of the executor, and examined Mr. Garvey as to value. The principal matter in dispute was the redemption value of the perpetual annuity of £451 10/9 at the date of Mrs. Kinahan's death in 1914. The Referee reserved his decision.

HIRE OF MOTOR CARS.—At Nisi Prius yesterday, before Mr. Justice Gibson and a city special jury, the action brought by Wm. B. Cairns, Ballina, horse dealer, Mount street, against John McLeady, horse dealer, Mount street, Dublin, to recover £117, balance alleged to be due for the hire of motor cars supplied by the plaintiff to the defendant between January, 1914, and August, 1917. The total account, it appeared, was originally £637, and payments amounting to £546 had been made. The cars had been employed by Mr. McLeady during the time that he was buying horses for the Army. The plaintiff alleged that the agreement was to pay £2 10s. per day for the cars. The defendant's case was that the agreement was for £2 per day, and he alleged that upon that basis he had overpaid the account, and that there was a balance due to him. The jury were unable to agree to a verdict. Counsel for the plaintiff—Mr. Price, K.C., and Mr. Lardner (instructed by Mr. E. Bourke); for the defendant—Mr. Battersby, K.C., and Mr. James Henry (instructed by Messrs. O'Neill and Collins).

"I should like to bring to your notice the benefit I have derived from your Phosferine Tablets. I was completely run down, suffering from nerves, headache, loss of appetite, and constant attacks of Malaria, trembling so much at times I could not attempt to write.

"On going into a chemist's to buy some Quinine I saw Phosferine Tablets for sale, so bought a bottle to see if they would do me any good, as I had often heard men speak about them. After a few days I began to eat better, also the headache was a lot better, so I continued to take Phosferine Tablets and have done so now for four months. You can see by my writing that I do not tremble now. I have not had an attack of Malaria during that time, I am always ready for my food, and feel better than I have done for this last two years. As an Infantryman I have done some hard marching over hills, sometimes in very hot weather, with full equipment and pack, and felt no ill effects of it, thanks to Phosferine Tablets."

This vigorous soldier owes it absolutely to Phosferine that his system is now able to resist the ravages of Malaria and kindred disorders. Phosferine spurs all the inactive nerve centres into producing the extra vital force, by which he overcomes the ill effects of nerve strain and exposure.

COUNTY WICKLOW.

VALUABLE AND ATTRACTIVE PROPERTY FOR SALE.
CASTLE KEVIN, GLENDALOUGH, CO. WICKLOW.

WE HAVE RECEIVED INSTRUCTIONS FROM WALTER HUGH FRIZELL, ESQ.,

TO SELL BY PRIVATE TREATY,

HIS VALUABLE AND ATTRACTIVELY SITUATED RESIDENCE, DEMESNE, AND ESTATE, KNOWN AS

CASTLEKEVIN, CO. WICKLOW.

The Estate consists of about 1,150 Statute acres, or thereabouts, situated in one of the most picturesque parts of the County Wicklow, surrounded by magnificent views of Glendalough, the Seven Churches, Lough Dan, and the Wicklow Mountains. The "Old Castle," situated on the Estate, has many historical associations. It is about three miles from the Seven Churches; one mile from the Village of Annamoe, and about an hour's motor run from Dublin.

Portions of the Estate, about 725 acres, are in the hands of tenants, who pay a yearly rental of £225. The rents are low, and have always been regularly paid.

The Demesne comprises about 425 acres, which includes about 80 acres under timber and plantation. The Land is partly in grass and partly tillage, and is farmed by the owner, a portion being let in grazing and conacre.

The fencing throughout the Demesne has recently been erected at great expense, and is in perfect order.

There is a valuable amount of timber in the Demesne, consisting of larch, spruce, ash, and beech.

The House, which stands high, is in perfect condition, and the purchaser will not have to expend anything in improvements or repairs. Mr. Frizell has at recent years expended a considerable sum in bringing in a perfect water supply and new sanitation. The work was carried out by Messrs. Brooks, Thomas and Co., Dublin.

Accommodation consists of drawingroom, diningroom, study, eight bedrooms, box room and store room, two bathrooms, and the usual and ample downstairs accommodation.

The Out-Buildings comprise steward's house, dairy, two stables, harness room, coach-house or garage, carpenter's shop, &c. Hay barns and large lofts, and machinery and implement sheds. The cow house holds 20 cattle.

The Garden, fully stocked, is close to the house, has recently been planted with a number of fruit trees.

There are two avenues and gate lodge.

There is excellent trout fishing in the River Avonmore, which flows at the foot of the Demesne.

The winter shooting of the property is good, and a large number of woodcock, snipe, duck, and rabbits can be obtained.

The House is fully furnished, and the entire contents can be taken over by the purchaser at a valuation.

There is a full complement of farm implements, nearly all new, which can also be taken over at a valuation.

The entire Property is one of the most attractive and desirable that has come into the market for some time complete and up-to-date in every respect.
